The background of the entire page is a close-up photograph of water ripples. The ripples are concentric and spread across the frame, creating a textured, blue-grey surface. The lighting highlights the peaks and valleys of the ripples, giving it a three-dimensional appearance.

Our memories are like echoes. The closer we are to the actual events, the stronger they reverberate in our minds. But as time passes and the distance grows, the echoes fade into oblivion.

echoes

This book strives to catch those echoes at their moment of conception. As the memories start to fade in years to come, you may glance through these pages to keep them crystal clear. Whether it's 2004 and you're trying to remember what you did at T.W.I.R.P. 2003, or it's 2054 and you're trying to remember what in the world T.W.I.R.P. even was, may you pick up this book and find beneath its surface remnants of echoes.

student life

Our academic lives are often filled with the never-ending pile of papers, books, and projects that dominate our time at NNU. What gives us life is the moments spent with friends at community events like Malibu Days, T.W.I.R.P., Fresheree, and other student body activities. Chances are twenty years from now we won't remember the academics so much – the killer test or the difficult assignment – but what will echo in our minds are the memories created with our friends and NNU family.

(( WELCOME WEEK ))

Welcome Week was full of fun and excitement for NNU's new freshman class. There were always helping hands near to help new students move into their homes for the year. An ice cream social, movies on the lawn, and a variety of other activities provided opportunities for students to become acquainted and begin forming friendships before classes began. Orientations were held to help freshmen gain an idea of what they could expect from college life and become more familiar with the campus. Later, a special convocation welcomed new students with a ribbon cutting ceremony. These Welcome Week activities officially greeted the freshman class as part of the NNU community.

Singing their hearts out, Kyle Yake and Zach Marble perform at Cafe Malibu.

A little mud can't stop Stephanie Seward and Noelle West from joining in the fun.

Chad Beggs and Jed Kuhn croon some beautiful melodies on the karaoke stage.

Following in the footsteps (left literally imprinted in Culver's lawn) of those before them, NNU guys see how many bodies they can pile on top on the chain in a spirited game of buck-buck. The women watch in dismay.

"Jesus and the Leprechauns", led by Sam Fleischmann, strut their stuff for a delighted audience.

Every year, students participate in Malibu Week's activities to reacquaint themselves with friends and meet the new freshmen. Malibu Days began Thursday with Jazz on the Lawn where all enjoyed Italian sodas while listening to one of NNU's fine jazz combos. Friday brought a barbecue and Cafe Malibu where students enjoyed drinks served by the freshman ladies while listening to NNU's finest sing karaoke. Volleyball, ultimate frisbee, and water sports on the Culver Hall lawn continued the fun on Saturday. The festivities concluded with a luau (complete with a roasted pig) and Rollerscamming Saturday evening.

Senior Mark Baas takes the mechanical bull for one last ride at Cafe Malibu.

Despite being called upon at the last minute to host the show, Jeremy Hodges did a great job keeping the show running and providing some laughs. In keeping with the Oscars theme, Hodges' ever-changing outfits were a source of amusement.

Sophomore Publicity Director Aaron Montgomery shows the council's commitment to keeping the show "clean." Due to controversial acts in past shows, much effort was put into making sure Freshree was appropriate yet still funny.

Members of the Sophomore Class Council started off the "Night at the Oscars" by entertaining the student body with a nightmare movie date.

Downhome

* Downtown

For what can easily be considered the biggest event of first semester, NNU ladies take the gentlemen of their choice out for two fun-filled nights of activities. This year's theme gave students a taste of the best of two worlds. Friday for "Downhome Night," students dressed in their finest country apparel and enjoyed a chili feed on campus before heading out to tackle a corn maze, pick and carve their own pumpkins, and spend some time at Boondocks miniature golfing, racing go karts, or playing laser tag. Saturday allowed for a change of pace as nearly 500 T.W.I.R.P. attendees invaded downtown Boise for "Downtown Night." After solving clues that led them to their pizza dinner, everyone headed out for a time to "choose your own adventure." While some sought warmth in the many coffee shops or the mall, others braved the chilly evening to pursue outdoor activities. Later on, everyone met up at Ice World for a feast of pies before they hit the rink to show off their skills. To wrap-up the weekend, students had the choice of seeing Finding Nemo or Spy Kids 3D. In the end, there were fun times and memories shared by all.

Homecoming at NNU takes place throughout Thanksgiving weekend. The highlight for current students is Wednesday's Homecoming Banquet, a time of laughter and romance. Alumni converge on the campus to enjoy Thursday night's concert featuring every group in the music department and watch NNU's basketball teams put the competition to shame. Homecoming week this year proved an excellent diversion for NNU alum and students alike.

Whitney VanBrocklin pauses with her teammates for a moment of prayer.

Mesut Admoglu looks to teammate David Lehrchall for the pass.

On October 17th, Montgomery Fieldhouse was filled with late night fun and excitement. Students filed into the gymnasium to watch the men's and women's NNU basketball teams compete in a series of fun-filled events such as three-point shoot-outs, relays, and slam dunk contests. Prizes were awarded to several cheering members of the crowd, and everyone enjoyed watching the two teams jest and compete.

MIDNIGHT

MADNESS

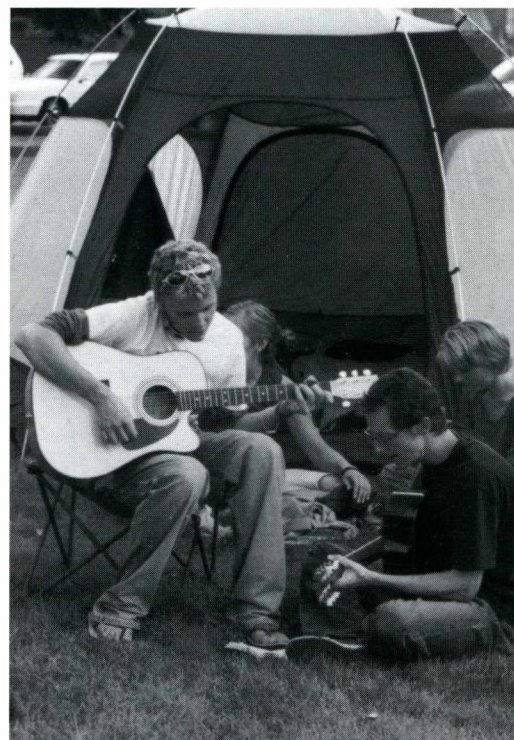

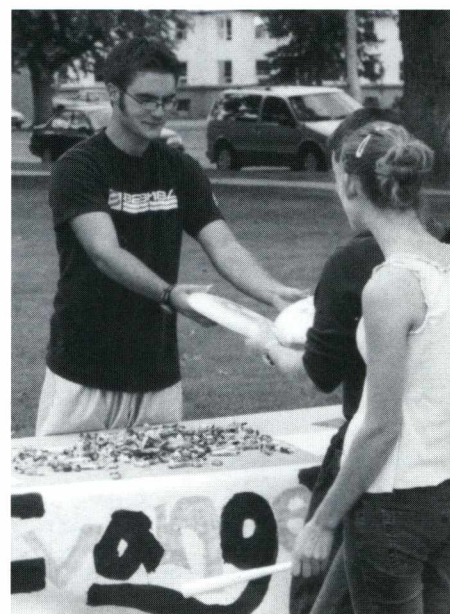

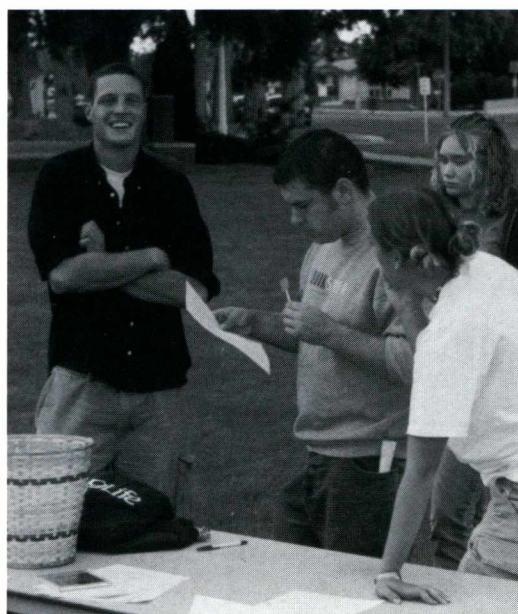

A relatively new addition to the busy NNU schedule, Fall Fest takes place during the first few weeks of school. This event allows all the clubs and organizations on campus to let students know what their groups are all about. Each club sets up a table or booth and students can mill around and check out clubs they may be interested in while enjoying cotton candy, sno-cones, and trying their hand at a game or two. Landing someone in the dunk tank always brought cheers – unless you were the one in the water. Fall Fest is an excellent opportunity for incoming students to see what they can become involved in and for returning students to join an organization to for the new school year.

LEFT: Julie Fish gives the camera a big smile as she stands at the PALS table. PALS members spend time with groups of children who have special needs. They plan fun activities for these children who otherwise may not be able to participate in such events.

Verne Ward makes an appearance to perform a song as his alter-ego, the lovable nerd "Nerve."

An American cultural phenomenon hit the NNU campus on September 30, 2003, as NNU Idol came to Amity Perk. In a spoof of the very popular singing competition "American Idol," students displayed their talents for a panel of three judges. Some serious competitors wanted to be chosen to compete in a Christian karaoke competition, but others wanted the title of "Funniest" (worst) performance of the night.

Hannah Bowman poses with the microphone after being awarded third place overall and a spot in the karaoke competition.

Students pack-out Amity Perk to listen to their peers perform and be insulted by the judges.

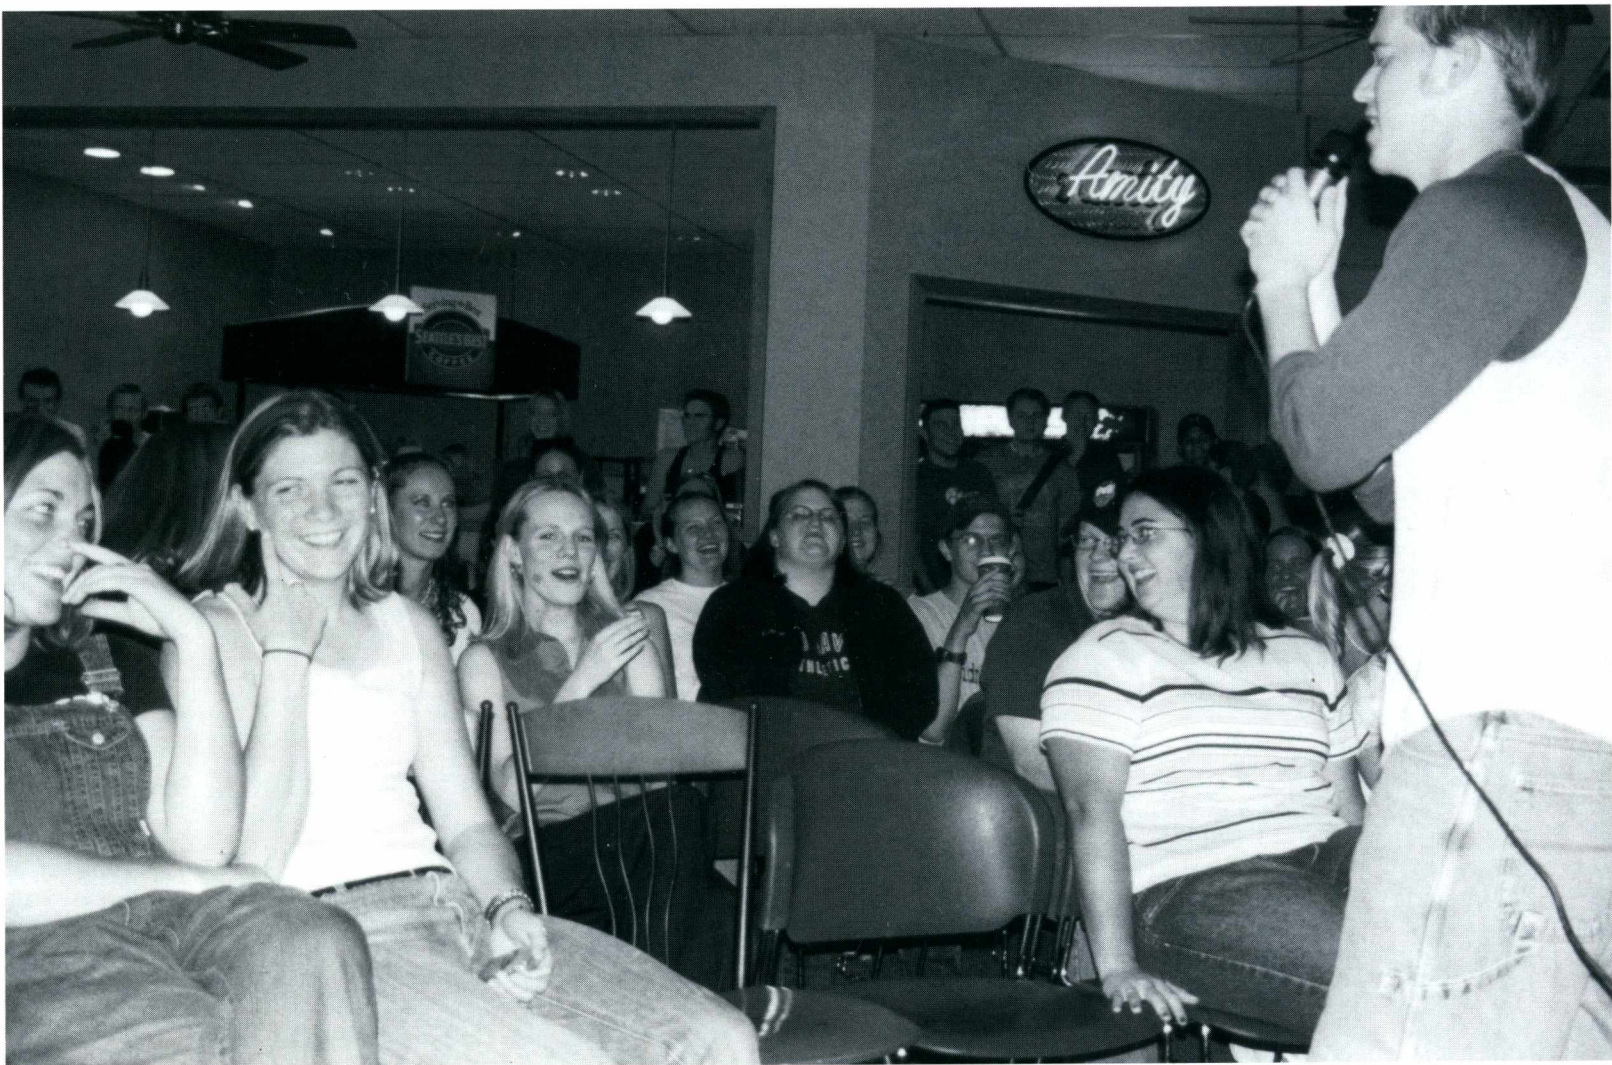

Nick Shoemaker adjusts his collar and clears his throat before beginning his song.

Sam Fleischmann performs while the judges Dr. "Randy Jackson" Willis, Shawn "Paula Abdul" Blenker, and Lance "Simon Cowell" Nelson watch intently.

BELOW: NNU Cross Country teammates Ryan Meier, Zach Dwello, and Jake Hotchkiss demonstrate that their team not only runs together, they sing together too.

Carrie Hays' off-key stylings gained her the coveted title of "Funniest" performance.

At the end of the evening, Katie Wilson claimed first place and was proclaimed the NNU Idol.

After nearly being cancelled forever last year, Mr. NNU made its triumphant return on March 6, 2004, to a packed crowd decked out in their eye patches and peg legs for "A Pirate's Life for Me." Organized by the Freshmen Class Council, the money raised from the event went to the March of Dimes. The night was full of laughs from beginning to end as two guys from each class battled one another for the ever coveted title of Mr. NNU.

RIGHT: Senior Michael Donahoe imitates Jack Black and Tenacious D, with a little help from his brother, for the talent portion of the contest.

While his original music video for the song "Video Killed the Radio Star" plays behind him, freshman Joel Willis gets the crowd involved.

After fooling everyone into thinking he would be imitating Michael Jackson, junior Nate Knodel amazes the crowd with his riverdancing skills.

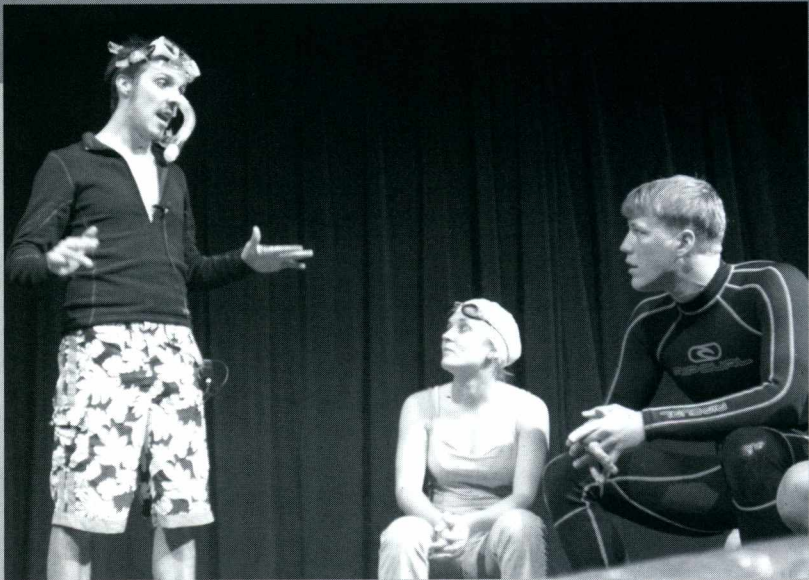

Sophomore Austin Zander brings his country music stylings, complete with the cowboy hat and white T-shirt, to his talent act.

( ( MR. NNU ) )

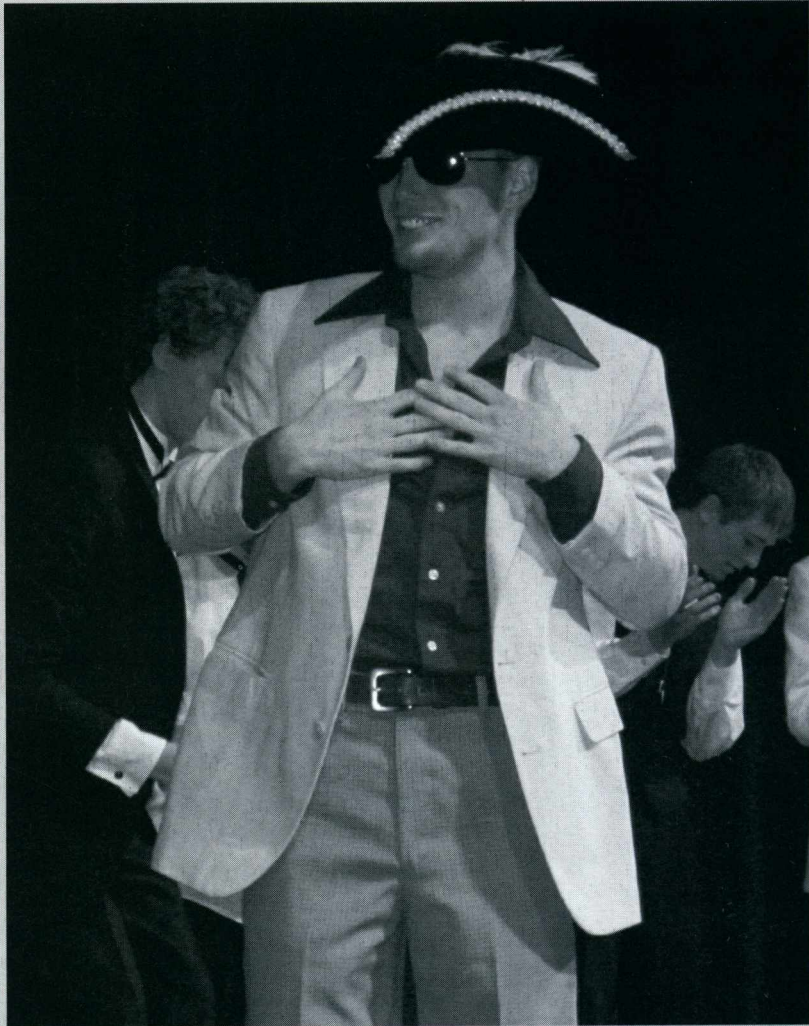

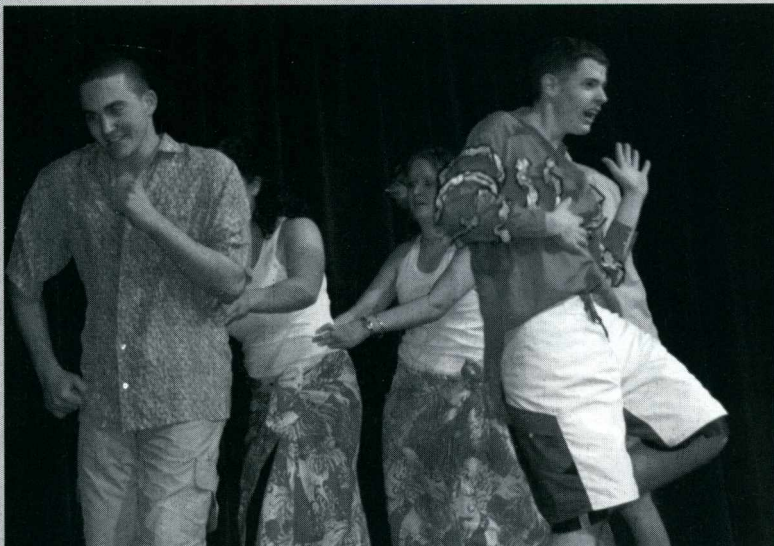

For the talent competition, sophomore Mark Hewes commands "Lazarus, come forth!" during his dramatization of the Carman song by the same name. Aiding him in his skit were Josh Van der Ploeg and Camden Hughes.

Katie Powell and Tyler Moyer listen intently as their "diving instructor," junior Aaron Baldassare, teaches them some rather unorthodox techniques for being safe while diving with sharks.

(( SPRING MUSICAL ))

Ducklings Katie Wilson, Stephanie Bartlow, Nikki Bodensstab, and Jenna Hage-meier strut their stuff immediately after breaking free from their eggs.

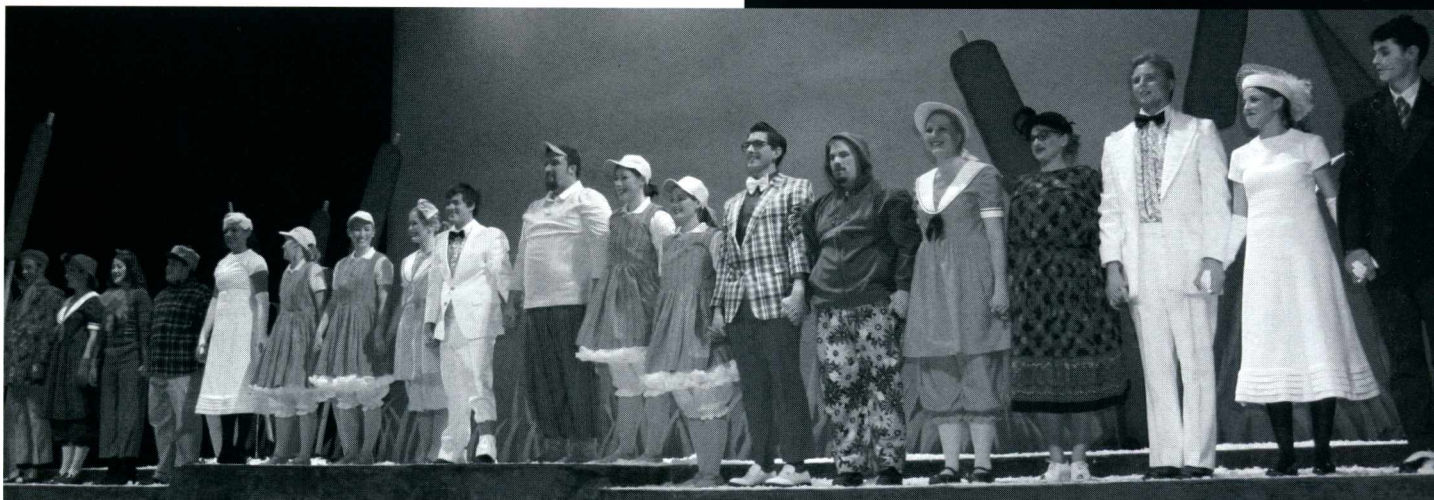

Tyler Hill, as the ugly duckling, dreams of imaginary delicacies that the conniving cat – Nathaniel Fairchild – has promised him.

TOP: Jeremy Hugos, playing a gobbling turkey, examines the duck family picture while Carmen Johnson looks on. ABOVE: Dan DeCloss and Meg McGovern are regal traveling swans that meet the ugly duckling in his travels.

The NNU music and art departments, along with the Northwesterners, brought new life to an old classic in their rendition of HONK!, a Broadway musical comedy based on the story of the ugly duckling. Bright costumes from past decades, a contemporary musical score, a well-written script, and heartfelt acting all blended together on-stage in perfect four part harmony.

The entire cast of Honk! turns out at the end of the show, taking one final bow in unison often for a standing ovation.

Doni Moore and Dan DeCloss flank Tyler Hill in a preflight song. Doni and Dan play geese who volunteer to help Ugly find his way back to the duckyard.

With a victorious "HONK!" Tyler Hill emerges unruffled from a giant egg, startling his mother, Pailee Fjeld, with his strangely un-ducklike appearance and demeanor.

Mary Osbourne and Megan McGovert play fish swimming underwater in the pond which is in the duckyard.

In an astounding musical finalé, Tyler Hill stands center stage, reveling in his white swan's plumage as he returns to the duckyard.

Career Week offers many opportunities for NNU students as they begin to think of life beyond college. This year it was held April 5-9, 2004. One main event of the week is the Career Fair. For a couple of hours on Thursday afternoon, dozens of businesses and organizations set up tables in the gym so that students may wander around and network with representatives, find opportunities for summer employment, or collect some free stuff. There are also refreshments and door prizes. This event gives everyone a look at what may await them as they look ahead to the future.

An NNU student takes advantage of one Career Week opportunity and talks with a representative from a local organization at the Career Fair.

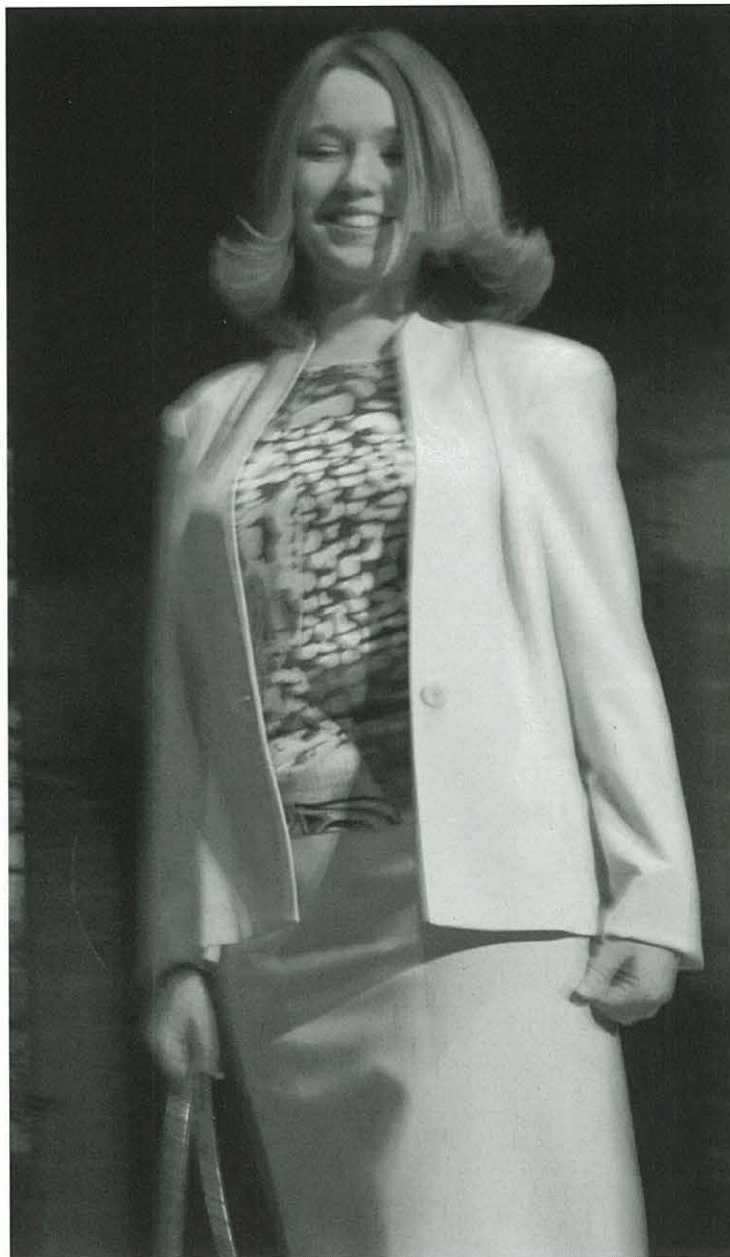

Dr. Pat Kissel, chair of the Department of Nursing, guides the attendees of the Etiquette Dinner through everything they need to know about attending a formal business dinner.

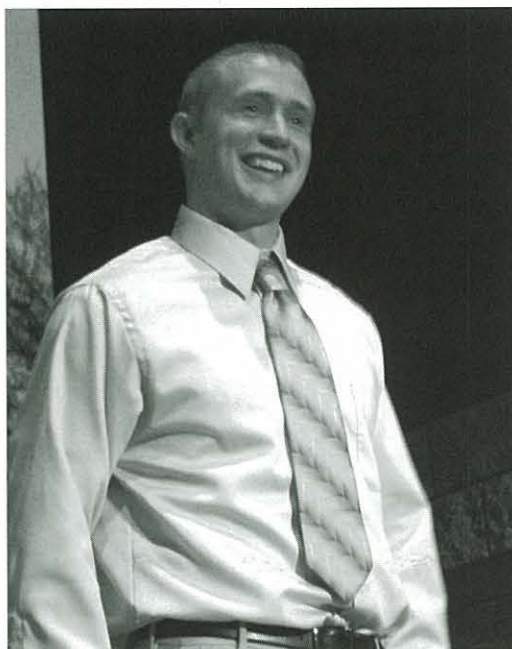

Rebecca Samuel is the picture of sophistication as she models an outfit perfect for a day at work. Everyone enjoyed seeing the different types of outfits chosen by the models.

Gwen Miller demonstrates what to wear for a day in the office. The female model had fun selecting their outfits from a Boise boutique called Ragtime.

Brendan Blowers models a more casual outfit.

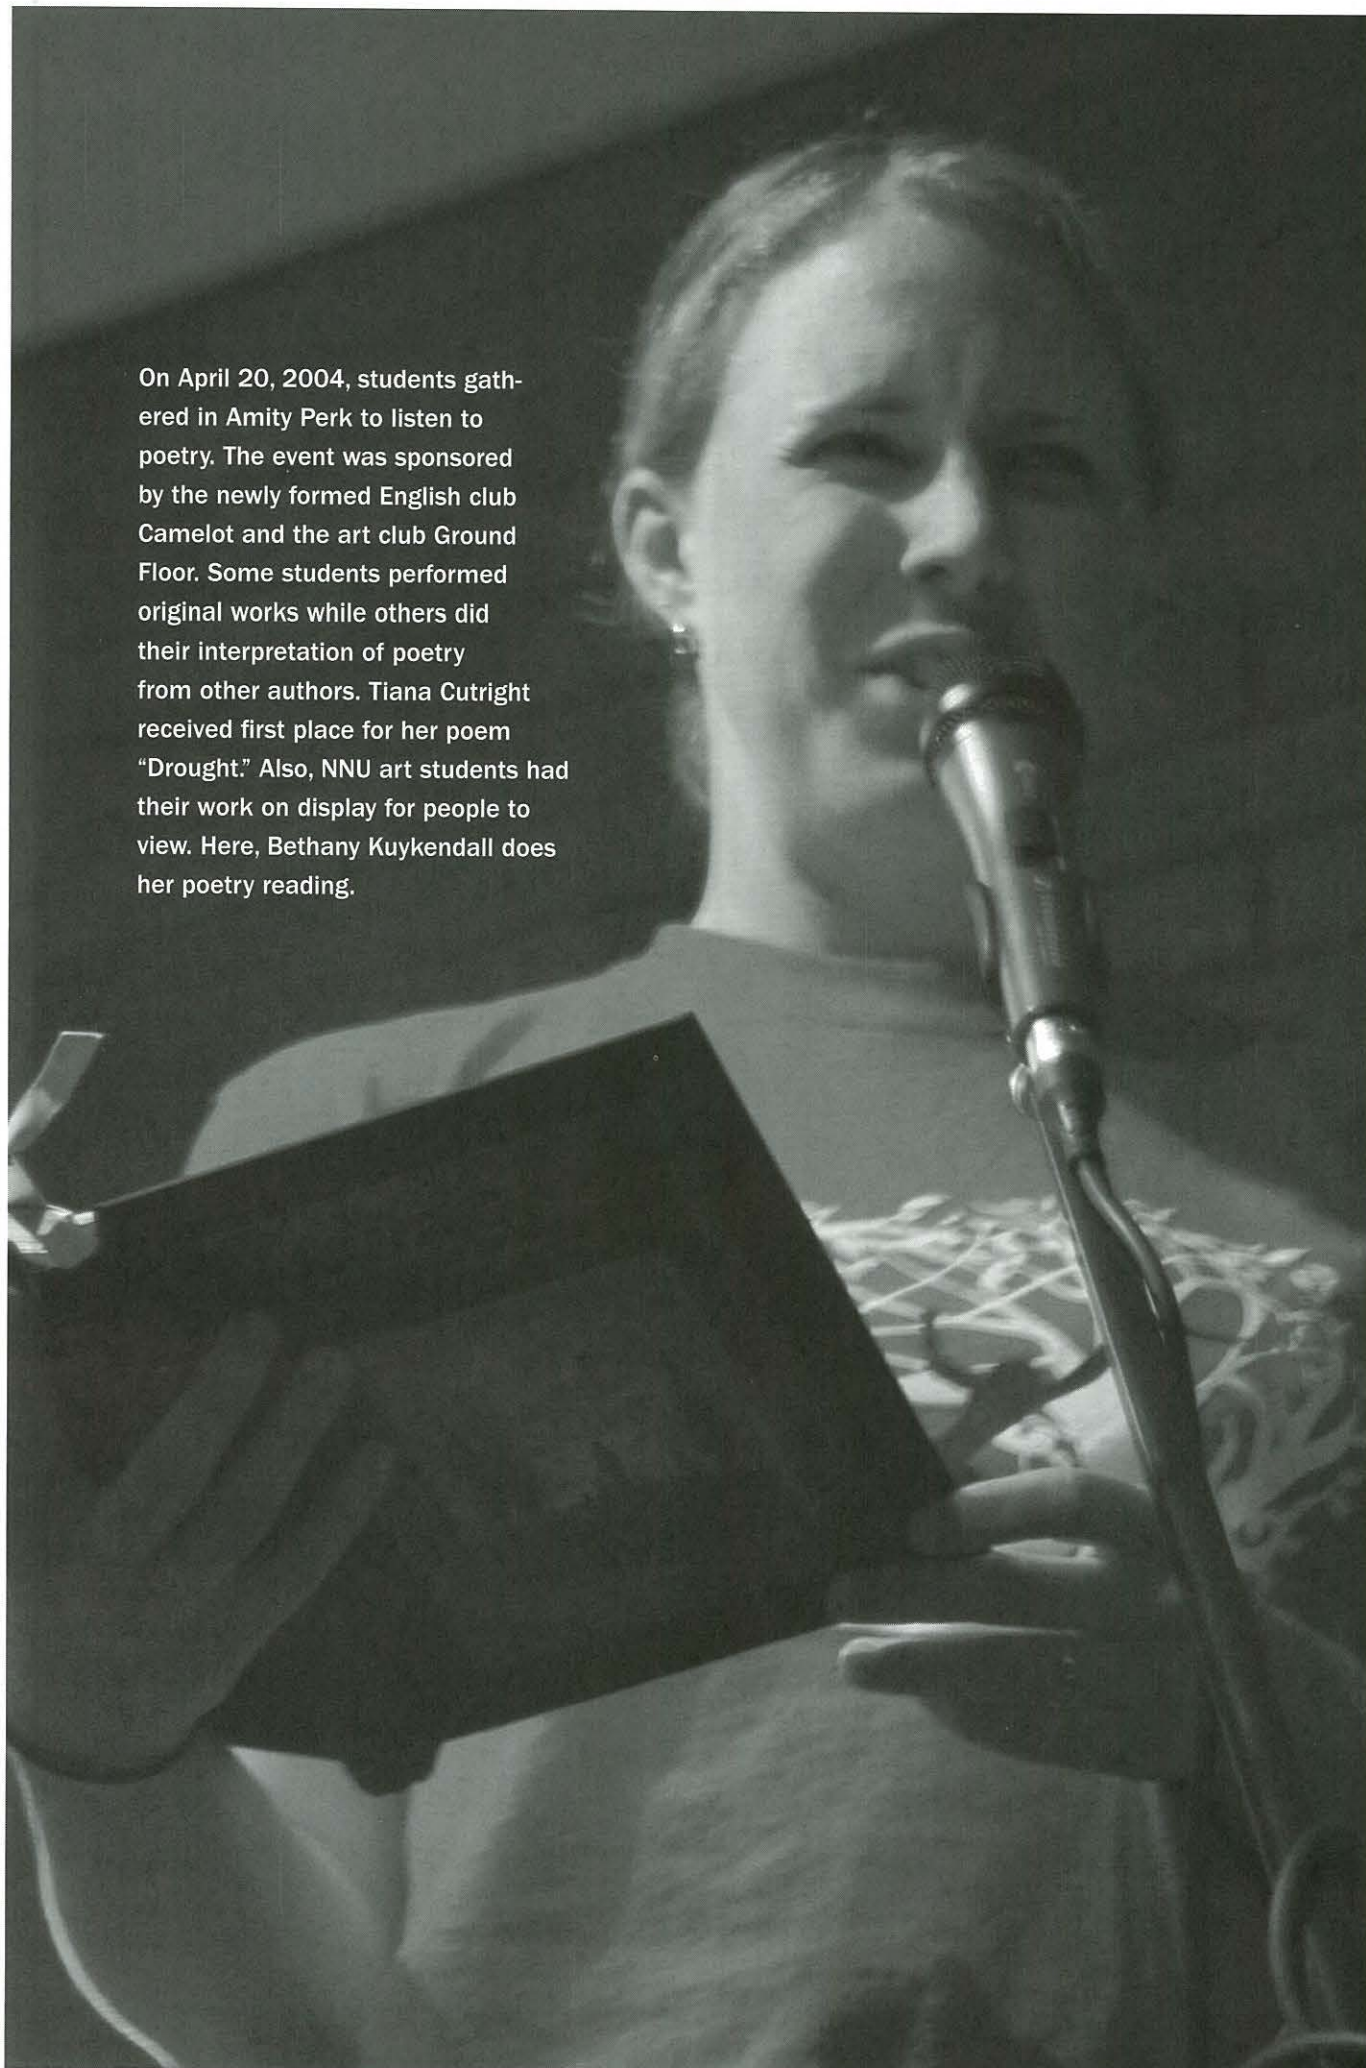

Landon Braden is dressed to impress for an interview.

On Wednesday night, students had the chance to attend the Etiquette Dinner and style show. The dinner showed students what to do at a formal meal. During the meal, they were shown the proper way to eat, how to answer some interview questions, and what to do with all of those forks! After dinner, attendees were treated to a style show where student and faculty models showed the proper career attire for interviews or the office. The evening was a fun way to provide students with the knowledge necessary to have a successful dinner interview.

( ( POETRY SLAM ) )

On April 20, 2004, students gathered in Amity Perk to listen to poetry. The event was sponsored by the newly formed English club Camelot and the art club Ground Floor. Some students performed original works while others did their interpretation of poetry from other authors. Tiana Cutright received first place for her poem "Drought." Also, NNU art students had their work on display for people to view. Here, Bethany Kuykendall does her poetry reading.

(( SPAGHETTI BRIDGES ))

ABOVE: Physics professor Dr. Lawrence adds weight to a bridge to see how much weight it will hold without breaking.

On Saturday morning April 24, 2004, physics students from NNU took on students from Skyview high school to see whose spaghetti bridge could hold the most weight. The bridges were made entirely out of spaghetti noodles and epoxy glue, and they had to meet certain requirements for weight and length. Weights were added onto the bridges until they finally collapsed under the stress. The NNU team's bridge was holding more than twice the weight of the leading Skyview team— until its tragic demise at the hands of Dr. Lawrence.

EGG STRAVAGANZA

One would think that college students would perhaps not be interested in the favorite Easter past time of small children, but that assumption would be incorrect at NNU. After Time Out on April 7, 2004, the excitement could barely be contained in the Science Lecture Hall. After being released from their captivity, NNU students raced across the Brandt Center Lawn in hopes of finding an egg (or two or three) that contained candy, a gift certificate, or perhaps even the grand prize— a certificate exchangeable for a DVD player.

Camden Hughes triumphantly displays his prized single egg after the hunt.

One day in the Dex, students waited eagerly to see who would be the next victim of a whipped cream pie. Each year, the Peer Counselors sponsor this event in order to raise money so that they can further reach out to the students of NNU. Administrative personnel, dorm RD's, and students volunteer to be "pied." Then, pies are sold to the highest bidder, and that person gets to throw the pie. That may be fun, but watch out for revenge!

The Ford RAs have some fun smearing excess whipped cream all over one another after graciously being hit with more than a few pies. For some reason, RAs are often very popular targets.

( ( MOTHER DAUGHTER WEEKEND ) )

Mother/Daughter Weekend is an established NNU tradition. This year on April 23-25, 2004, moms joined their daughters on campus for a weekend. Sometimes grandmothers and sisters join in the fun as well. This weekend gives mothers an opportunity to stay in their daughter's dorm, maybe eat in the Dex, and just spend some time becoming closer. The weekend includes a banquet, a chapel, a mother/daughter project, and lots of time to just hang-out together.

BELOW: Megan Bartlett and her mother pose together for a picture after the Mother/Daughter Banquet. The weekend served as a great time for strengthening relationships.

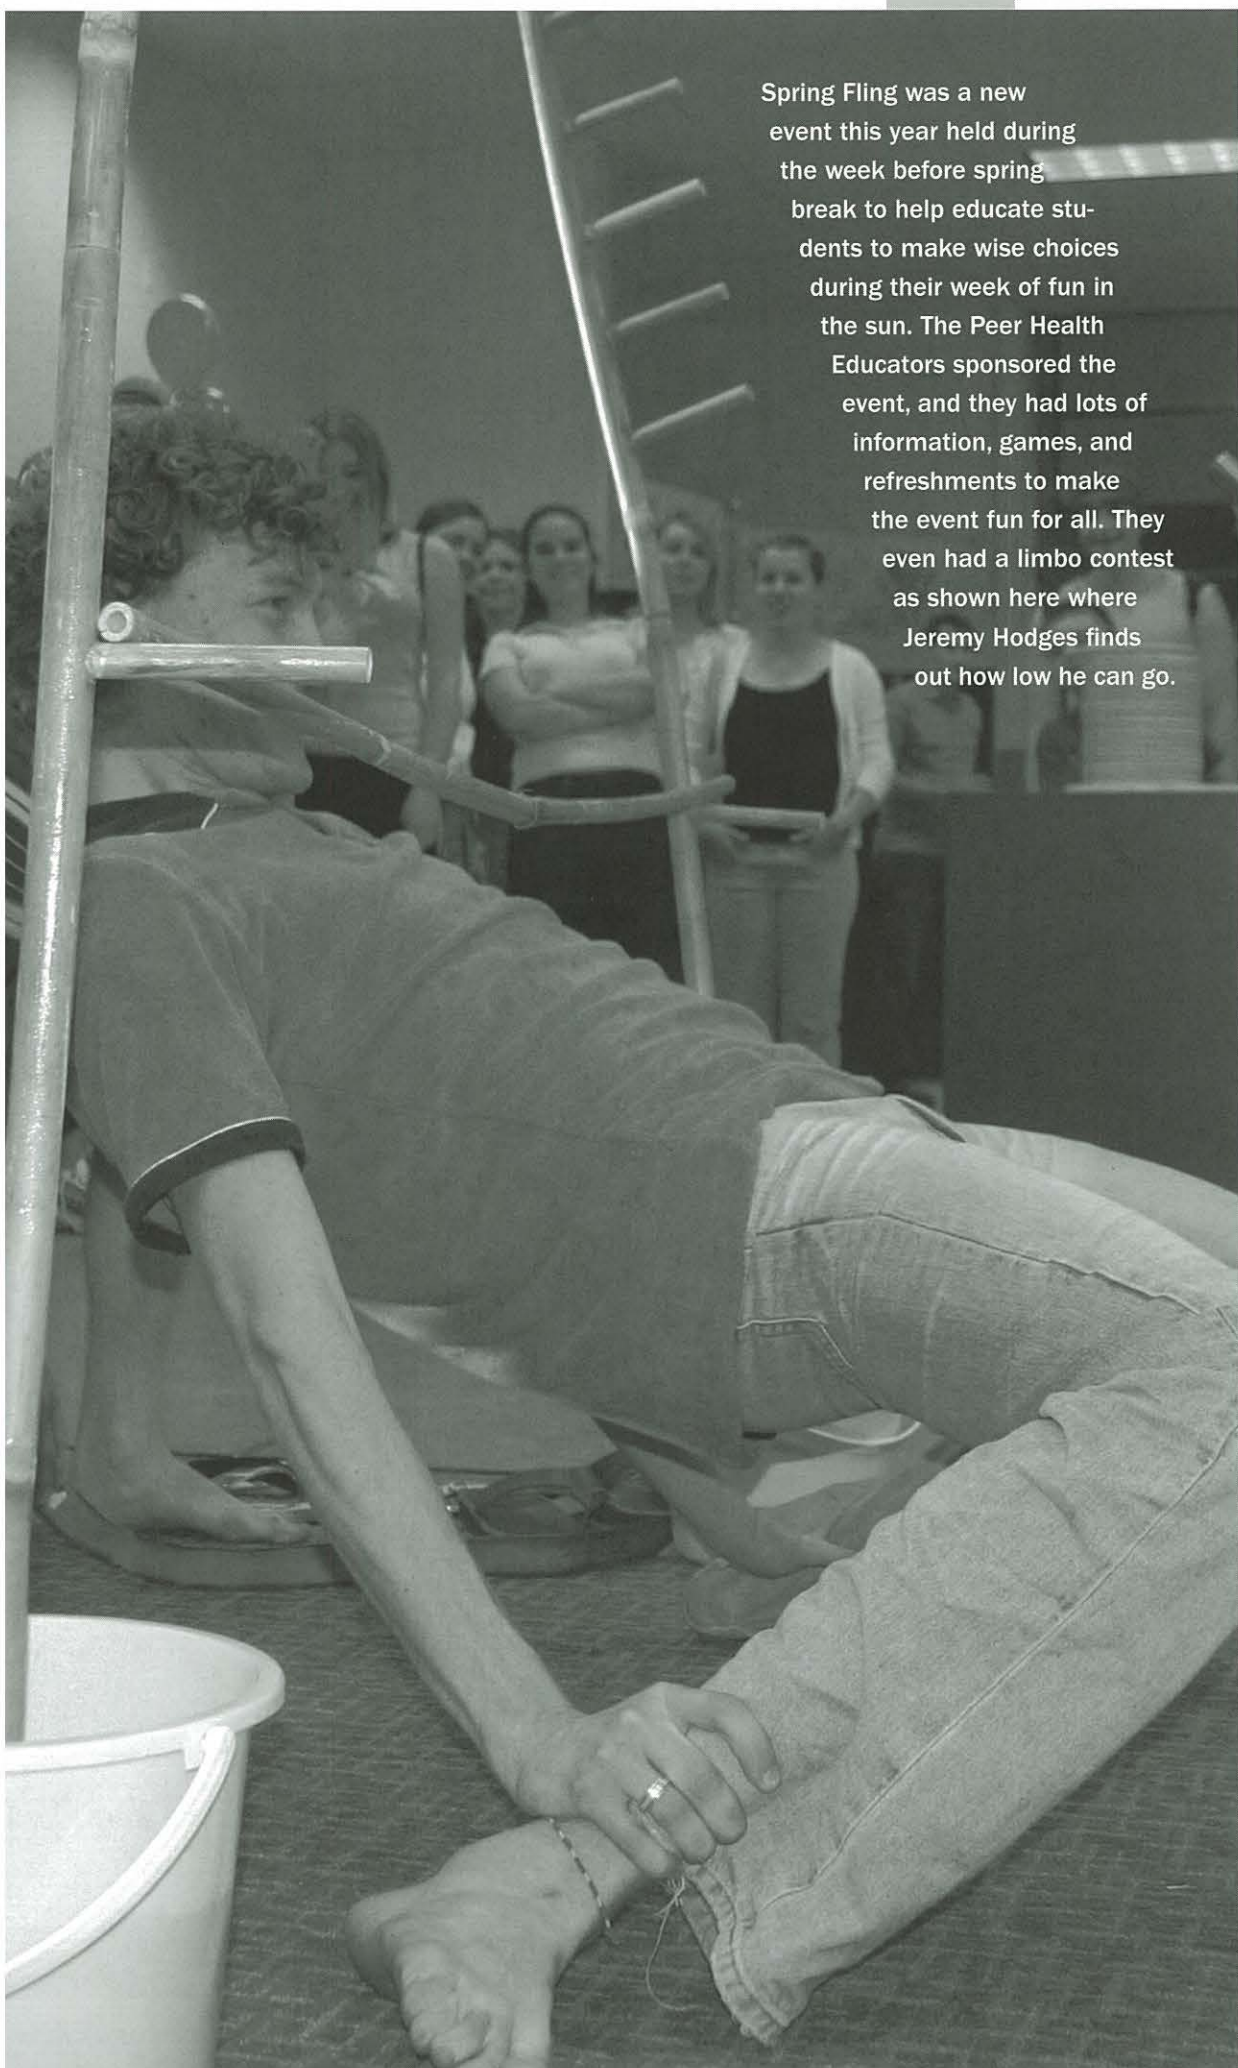

Speaker Karen Gunstream delivers a special message to all the mothers and daughters during the Mother/Daughter Banquet Saturday night.

(( SPRING Fling ))

Spring Fling was a new event this year held during the week before spring break to help educate students to make wise choices during their week of fun in the sun. The Peer Health Educators sponsored the event, and they had lots of information, games, and refreshments to make the event fun for all. They even had a limbo contest as shown here where Jeremy Hodges finds out how low he can go.

It may have been Friday the thirteenth, but there was no bad luck haunting NNU's Valentine's Banquet this year. The atmosphere was perfect as couples dressed in their finest attire arrived at the Sandstone in downtown Nampa to enjoy an evening of good food and live music. Whether attending with that special someone or a good friend, everyone enjoyed the time to get away from campus and have a relaxing evening.

( CHOIRS )

Crusader Choir members Stephanie Bartlow, Melissa Benjamin, and Candace Breshears smile a sigh of relief after the successful combined choir performance of Mozart's Requiem. The choirs put in many hours of rehearsal under the direction of Dr. Stallcop to make the performance a success.

The three choral groups of NNU, University Women's Choir, Crusader Choir, and Northwesterners, contain many talented students from a variety of majors. They perform individually at churches throughout the community and sometimes tour areas of the Northwest. Occasionally, the choirs join forces to present works like Handel's Messiah or Mozart's Requiem. This year both Crusader Choir and the Northwesterners headed out on mission tours to Europe where they spent two weeks singing and ministering.

Brad Waller demonstrates his enthusiasm for being in band. Though band was a lot of hard work, students enjoyed using the skills they had spent so many years perfecting

LEFT: Tim Risi, Geoff Harmon and Alvin Shaul play their french horns. Band gave students the opportunity to form relationships with fellow musicians.

NNU boasts two bands, jazz combos, and a wind quartet. The concert band is directed by Dr. Jim Willis and plays a variety of songs both classical and modern. This year they went on a tour to Seattle. Hallelujah Brass is directed by Dr. Casey Christopher. It plays jazz or brass ensemble pieces. It also toured to Seattle. The Wind Quartet, under the direction of Dr. Casey Christopher, plays classical pieces and went to a convention in Kentucky this year. These groups also present concerts on the NNU campus throughout the year. These give NNU students the chance to hear some great music and perhaps the opportunity to fulfill some Art and Music requirements!

RIGHT: Elizabeth Simerly concentrates on her music as she blends the sound of her flute in with the rest of the instruments of the band.

LEFT: Chris Mayer, Nathan Williams, and Forest Fisk keep their eyes trained on the director as they skillfully play in unison. Learning to follow direction and work as a team were some of the important life skills learned by the band members.

Wayne's delicious creations at Flash in the Pan always created a long line of students waiting for the dish cooked up just the way they wanted it. Occasionally, long lines were a problem for students in a hurry to get to their next class, but there was always something to eat quickly for those in a rush.

Bekah Bowman and Bekah Murphy scoop up some ice cream in their endeavor to create the perfect frozen dessert. Students always came up with many ways to use this standard Dex desserts including milk shakes, ice cream on warm chocolate chip cookies, or even just the standard ice cream cone.

Katie Wilson and Jeremy Hodges demonstrate that the best thing about eating in the Dex is getting to spend lots of time with your friends.

Jena Atwood fixes up a bagel with all the toppings. Continuous service allowed students to be able to stop in all day and grab a sandwich or bagel between classes.

(( JUNIOR CLASS PLAY ))

ABOVE RIGHT: Heather Purdy, Devon Van Essen, and Ted Moore wonder why they have all been reunited on the one year anniversary of Monica's death.

February 27-March 2, 2004, NNU presented "Rehearsal for Murder." The audience was first treated to "Stephlock and Watson" a short skit written by director Bethany Kuykendall. The play featured a diverse and talented ensemble including Mark Hewes as the playwright Alex Dennison who devises an elaborate scheme to catch the killer of his fiancée, actress Monica Welles, played by Joy Kaplan. Numerous twists and turns in the plot kept the audience guessing the identity of Monica's murderer until the surprising end.

(( FALL PLAY ))

This year's fall play, "Traveling Light," was a modern retelling of the gospel of Mark. It told the story of Jesus starting with John the Baptist and ending with the resurrection of Jesus. A talented cast made this play an intriguing look at a familiar story.

The Brick House is, as the name implies, a small brick house which is open to all students. It can be used for parties or meetings. It has an extra room for campus guests to stay in. Every year a group of four is chosen to stay in and run the Brick House. This year Mike Larson, Todd McArthur, Ben Forest, and Dave Dickey were the "Brick House boys." They hosted several pancake breakfasts, remodelled parts of the house, redid the coffee bar in the basement, and added a ping pong table. Students also enjoyed relaxing on Larson's leather furniture which he graciously allowed to be used in the living room.

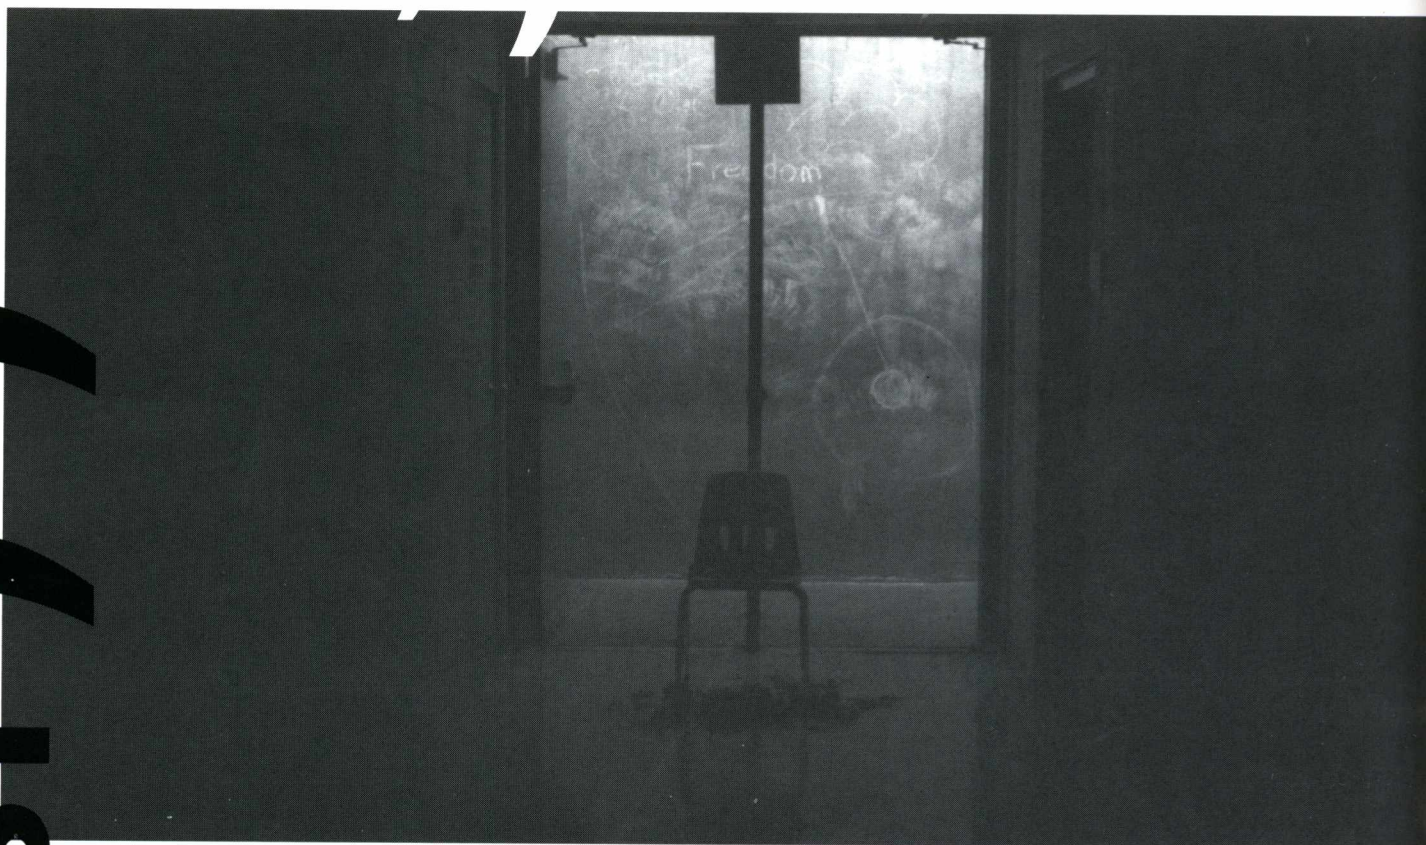

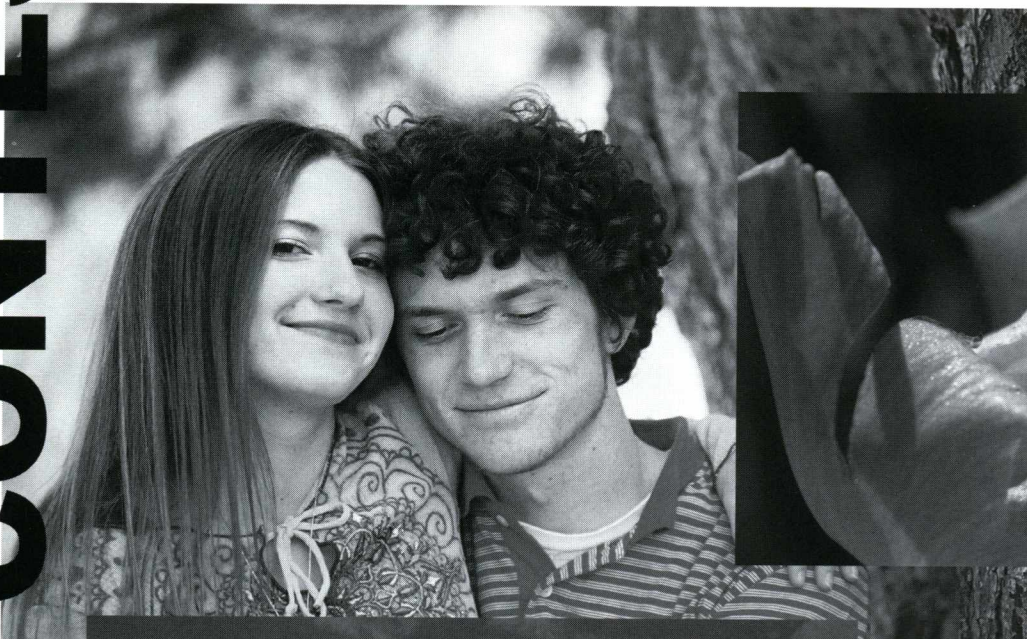

Every Thursday night the Brick House is invaded by mobs of students coming to sample the Brick House boys' secret recipe for "bricks." The Top Ten Cafe, held from 9:00 pm to 12:00 pm, also features other coffee shop style drinks and treats for those who aren't in the mood for a brick. Here, Kevin Lambert enjoys his time at the Brick House.

BELOW: Jeremy Hodges finds a new use for the trash can that had been holding the "brooms" and uses it to take a ride around the rink.

On Saturday, January 31, NNU students gathered at Idaho Iceworld to enjoy a traditional sport: broom hockey. At any one time, over 50 shoe clad NNU students could be seen sliding around the ice rink participating in one of the two broom hockey games being played. For awhile, the games were cheered on by what appeared to be a local boys' hockey team. Dressed in matching warm-ups, they came up with cheers and acted as excited as if they were watching the Idaho Steelheads in action.

BELOW: Broom Hockey may be somewhat of a misnomer for this sport. No brooms are utilized, no skates are worn, the rules are negligible, and the puck is actually a big black ball. Pretty much the only similarity it has to ice hockey is the ice, but it's a lot of fun!

Over 100 NNU students gathered to watch the San Diego Gulls take on the Idaho Steelheads on February 6, 2004. Black uniformed Steelheads struggled against the orange and white Gulls pausing only for two halftimes when music and spotlights took center stage. The high point of the night occurred when gloves came off late in the second period. Everyone rose to their feet and cheered as punches flew, redoubling their noise when the struggling San Diego player lost his balance – and the fight.

(NIGHT AT THE STEELHEADS)

Each semester, time is set apart to focus on the spiritual aspect of life at NNU. Spiritual Emphasis Week takes place in October, and this year our guest speaker was Reverend Dave Rodes, senior pastor of Pualup, Washington Church of the Nazarene. Rev. Rodes had spent time in Uganda working with victims of the AIDS virus and was able to bring a unique perspective to his messages. He delivered "Prayers for the Journey" beginning with "Come Lord Jesus" to set the tone for the week. The next prayers encourage surrender and trust in God and reminded us of the sufficiency of God in everything.

In January, NNU was again blessed to have a guest speaker on campus. Reverend Larry Walkemeyer of Long Beach, California had three words for students to keep in mind. "Lavish" reminded us of the limitlessness of God's love. "Mosaic" represented the pieces of a broken life put back together by God to create something beautiful. And finally, "Resonate" reminded us to let our lives show God's love to all. Together these events provided a great time of spiritual refreshing.

LEFT TOP: Lifting their voices and their hands, students enjoy a time to set aside the worries of daily life and rest in the presence of God.

( SPIRITUAL EMPHASIS WEEK )

LEFT: Reverend Dave Rodes encouraged the student body with "Prayers for the Journey" designed to help make "fully devoted follower[s] of Jesus."

BELOW: Starting the week out on a positive note, Carey Cook and Michael T. Spengler lead worship at Monday morning's community chapel. This time allowed participants to prepare their hearts to hear the day's message.

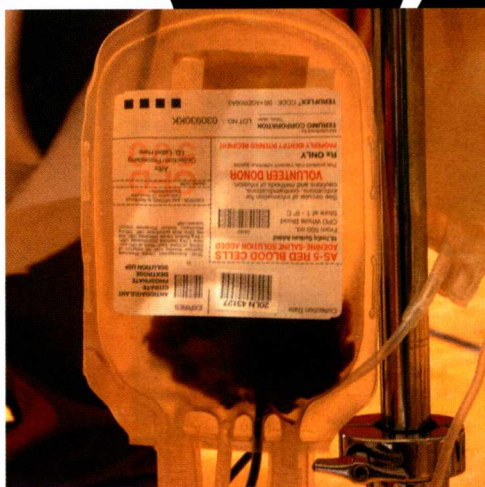

BELOW: Heather Purdy, Kristin Desgroseillier, and Josh Carpenter lift their voices in a trio of praise. Hearing from different worship groups during each service gave each day a unique beginning. It was always fun to have the opportunity to see and hear all of the many musical talents with which students at NNU have been blessed.

ABOVE: Community Relations Director Josh Walker, organizer of the blood drive, sets an example by offering his own blood.

Every year, one student blood drive is organized each semester. On October 9, 2003 and January 29, 2004, students were encouraged to take this opportunity to make a contribution to the community in a very real and tangible way. There is rarely a shortage of volunteers wanting to donate blood, a fact that speaks highly of the giving spirit of the NNU student body as a whole. To some, donating blood can be an intimidating ordeal, but the friendly nurses made the procedure both pleasant and timely. The blood drive was a success, and the American Red Cross greatly appreciated the willingness of NNU students to donate.

(( THE BIG AMITY ))

RIGHT: Shea Nash and Jeff Umbarger show off their moves.

BELOW: A "no dancing" stipulation made sure the event followed the rules of the school, but creative students found lots of other ways to make the night fun.

FAR BELOW: Paul O'Brien, Kevin Lambert, and Annie Corn join in the non-dancing conga line.

On February 17, 2004, Ian Williams, Student Center Director, brought the first ever "No Dancing" club night to Amity Perk. The atmosphere was set perfectly with flashing lights, fog, and even a bubble machine. Non-alcoholic margaritas and strawberry daiquiris were available for all to enjoy. DJ Mark Hewes added the finishing touch to the night with his eclectic selections of music. Games of "Twister" got the evening off to a good start, and the non-dancing fun continued for hours.

NNU's sense of community is one characteristic that distinguishes it from other schools. Without a doubt, what makes NNU great is its people – students, faculty, and staff. Living with the same group of people day-in and day-out forms relationships that last for a lifetime. Though the faces change every year and memories fade over time, each person who spends time on this campus leaves impressions on others that will echo throughout time.

WHO'S WHO

Each spring, twenty-five students with senior standing are selected for the honor of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Faculty members nominate students whom they believe fit the criteria of scholarship and participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities. Also, citizenship, service to NNU, and students' potential for future achievement is considered. Forty students are nominated from all those eligible, and juniors and seniors then vote for their peers. The top twenty-five students become the Who's Who students for that year. And with that, meet the 2003-2004 Who's Who students...

Senior KC Hills exits the stage after receiving his hood from the dean of his school. As a new tradition, all seniors received their academic hoods at Investiture.

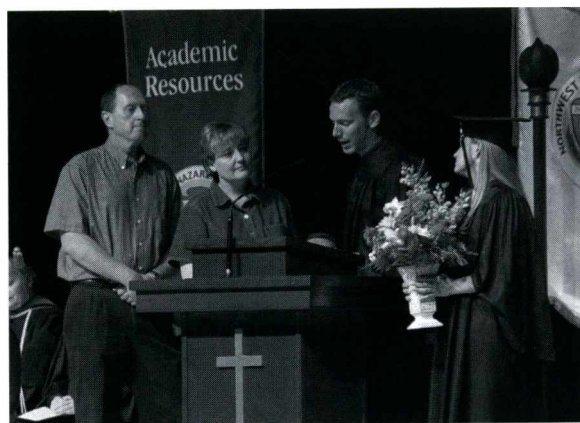

Seniors line up in the Brandt Center lobby to wait for their turn to walk into the auditorium behind the flag of their school.

Emily Mace represents the school of Health and Science during the ceremony.

The Investiture Service is one final chance every year for the entire university community to gather together with the graduating seniors. This year, during chapel on Wednesday, May 5, 2004, new university traditions were instituted including the introduction of a new mace carried by Dr. Stallcop, the presentation of the senior gift, and the presentation of academic hoods to all students by the deans of their respective schools. The senior class presented President Hagood with a new medallion to be worn during formal ceremonies as this year's senior gift.

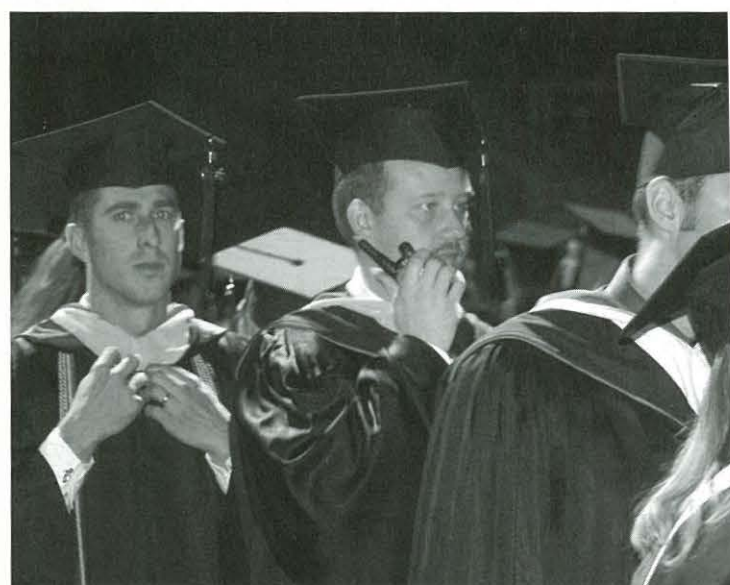

Marks Baas and Melissa Pinkerton present a gift in memory of Jarod Krohn who would have graduated with their class.

On May 15th, 2004, Northwest Nazarene University graduated its 88th class. In a traditional ceremony, graduate and undergraduate students alike received deserved congratulations on jobs well done. Commencement speaker Senator Larry Craig delivered an address on American Realism in the twenty-first century. He was also presented with an honorary doctorate. There were light moments in the ceremony as when President Hagood celebrated the return of his erstwhile wandering portrait. The ceremony ended with the audience joining with the graduates in singing NNU's Alma Mater one last time.

leadership

The impact left by the student leaders of NNU will continue to reverberate for years throughout the school and in the lives of the other students whom they helped and lead during their time here. Student government leaders, members of traveling ministry teams, resident assistants, peer counselors, Bible study leaders, and peer health educators all served the student body in different capacities, but each left imprints on the lives of the others with whom they came in contact.

Student leaders take time out from their activities for praise and worship.

Tim Milburn, Josh Walker, and Josh Maggard participate in a team building exercise. Forming bonds and trust was an important part of L.E.A.D.

In a moment between water fights, Ali Brown and Susan Young hose down a tarp.

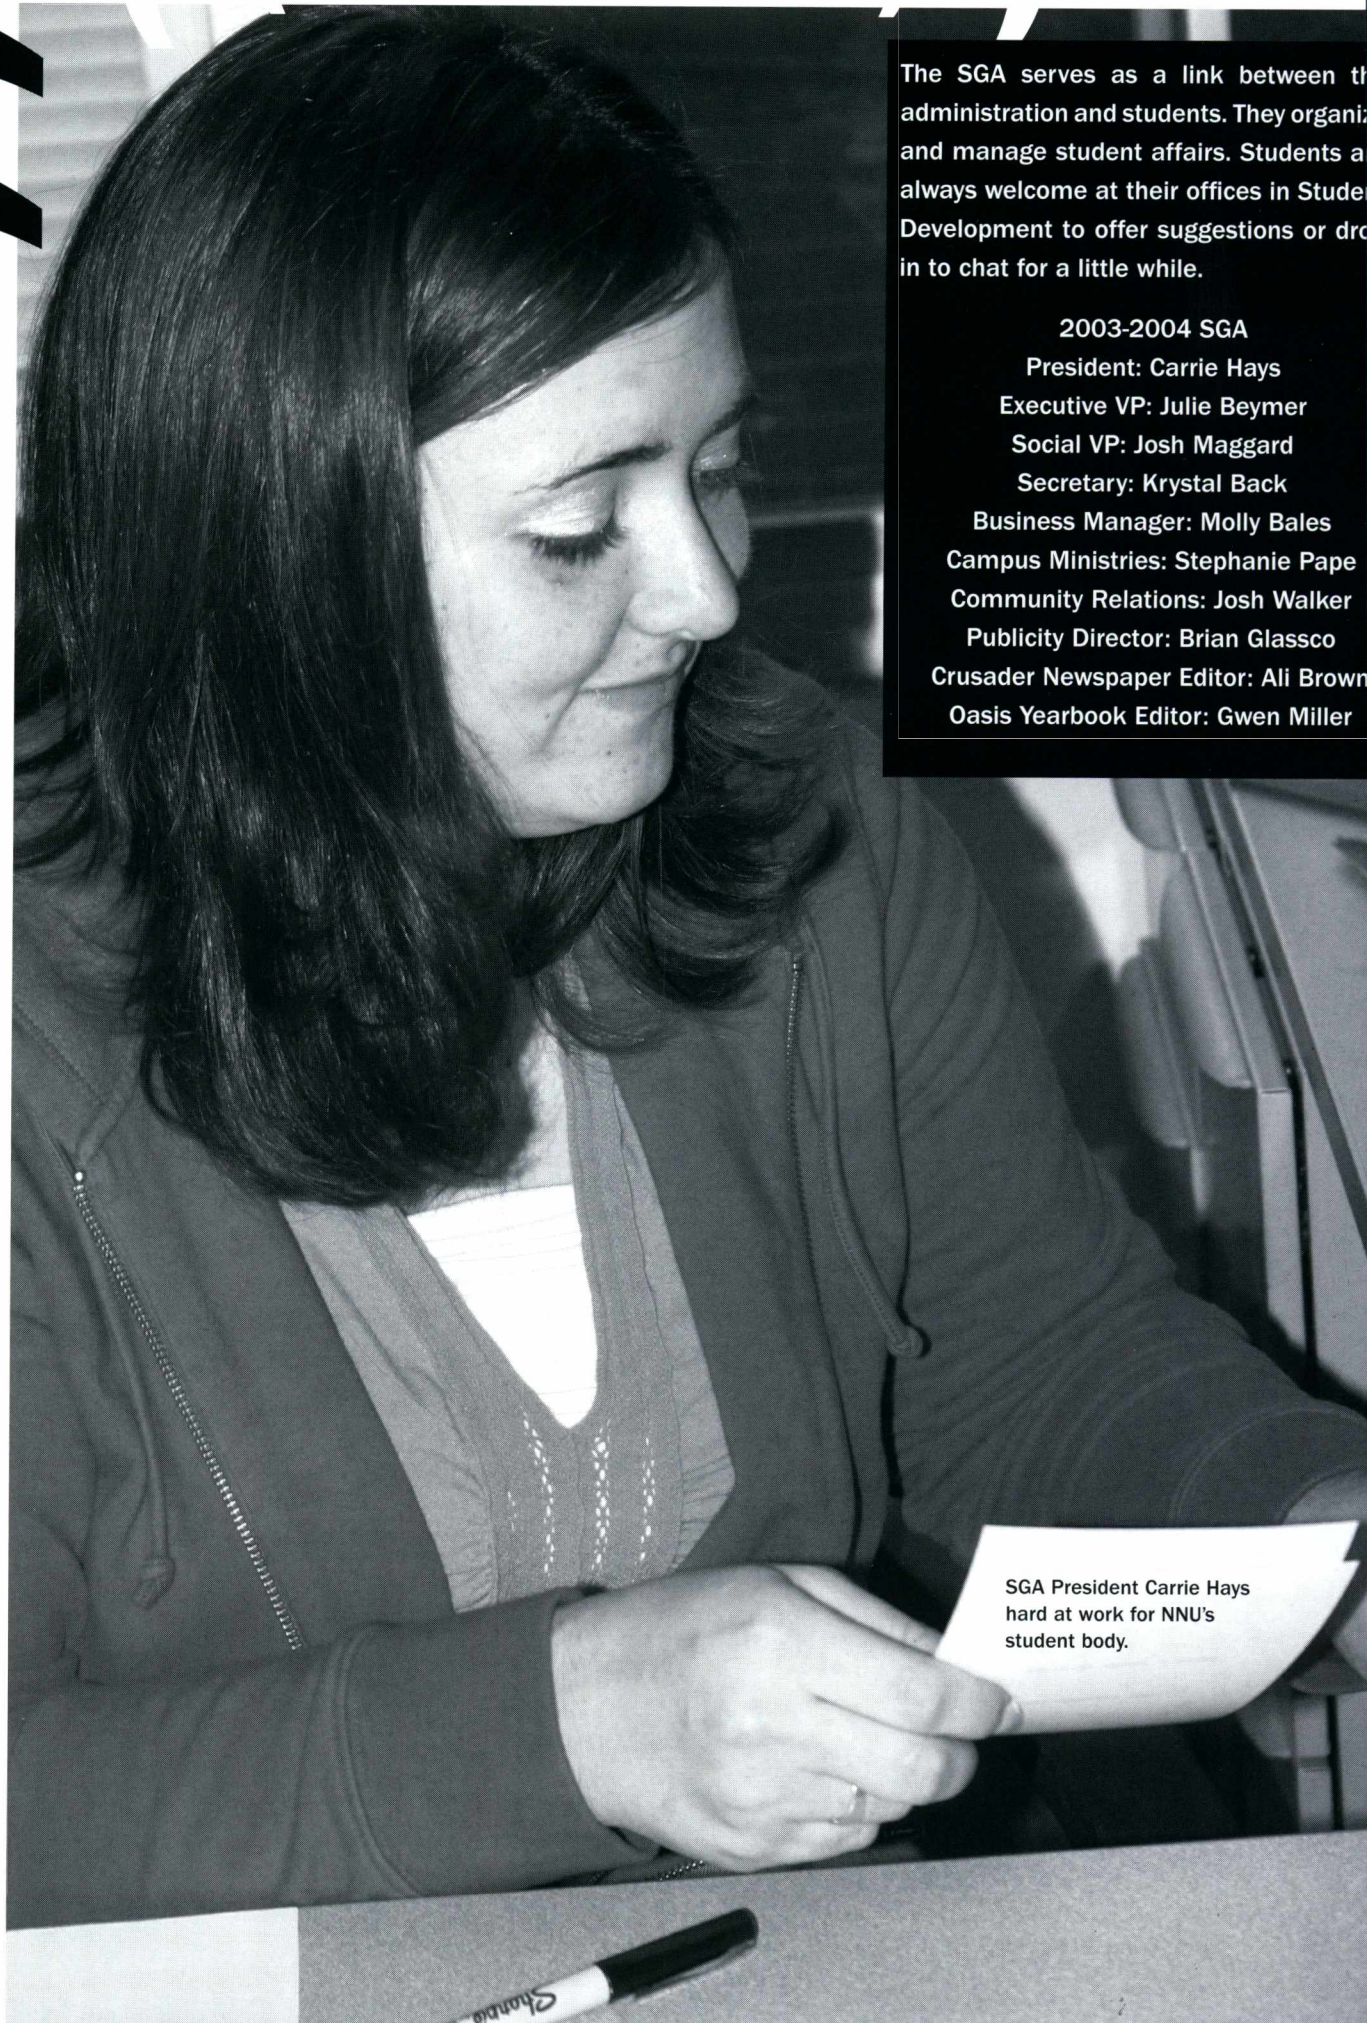

Beautiful music: Keith Effler, Marc Herring, Michael T. Spengler, Todd McArthur, and Ric Shewell lead a guitar quartet worship session.

On August 15th, student leaders (everyone from Peer Counselors to Student Government officers) loaded into buses and headed to Trinity Pines camp in Cascade, ID. They spent a few days growing and bonding together as they prepared to lead their peers in the coming school year. Leaders began working with their teams for the year by participating in get-to-know-you activities, team-building exercises, and planning sessions. They also took time to worship together and give back to Trinity Pines by performing service projects. Overall, it was an amazing time of growth and renewal in a variety of areas.

Every Wednesday night during the year, three elected Senators from each class along with the SGA Executive Vice-President and Secretary meet at 8 o'clock in the Wordsworth Meeting Room. They are the people responsible for choosing the best way to spend student government fees. Any club or other student organization on campus is allowed to have a bill written and presented before the Senate requesting funds for any events or activities their group might be planning. Meetings are open for all students, and all are encouraged to come and voice their opinions.

Junior Senator Jana Tweedy carefully scrutinizes a bill before it is to be voted on as Secretary Krystal Back and Senator Sara Sohriakoff look on thoughtfully. Senators did their best to make wise decisions about how students' money should be spent. Understanding a bill completely was an important part of this process.

PARABLE

NNU's summer drama group visited camps and churches in five Northwest states during a tour of roughly nine weeks. They also flew to steamy Houston, Texas for NYC (Nazarene Youth Congress.) Their main drama program, On This Rock, written and directed by Bette Moore, warned against placing idols before God. A mixture of the Old Testament story of Elijah, a readers theater presentation, and a reality television show, the program impacted crowds throughout the Northwest. Short sketches "Bulletin Police", "Testify", and Tyler Hill's (boink!) cactus impersonation were also hits.

One night as Kendall Yoder drove down the dark, lonesome highway, a suicidal deer attacked the Parable van. Kendall quickly pulled over and Jayna Poe went in search of the deer. After discovering the creature under a guardrail, Jayna, pulling its legs, attempted to drag it off the road. Crack! The deer was henceforth named "Stumpy."

Each December, nine students have the privilege of being selected for Covenant, NNU's summer traveling band. These students spend the spring semester logging countless hours of rehearsals before hitting the road in June. They spend approximately two months of the summer traveling to camps and churches around the Northwest representing NNU and ministering to people. The task is challenging, but the experience is incomparable.

Witness takes a little time off to enjoy some Krispy Kreme donuts. Yum!

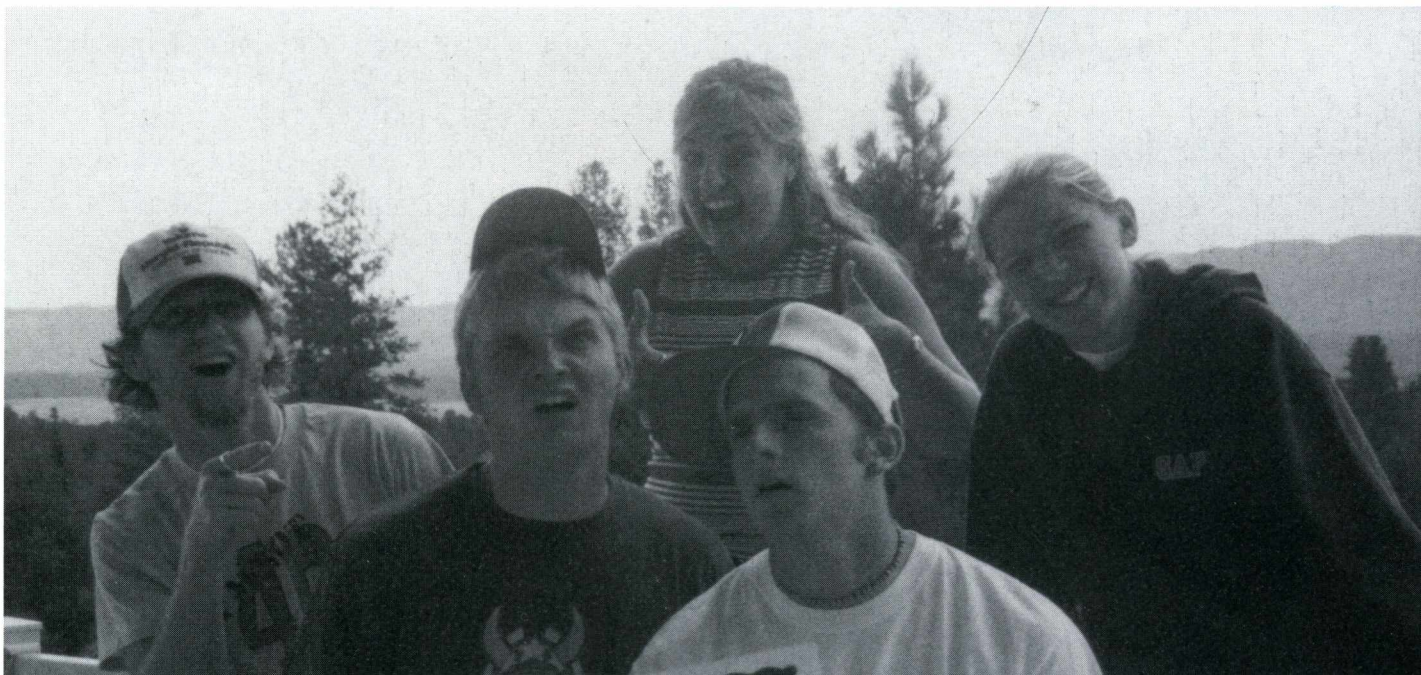

The summer was not all work for the team. Chocolate, anyone?

Witness 2003: Roxanne Mc Cormick, Josh Walker, Zach Marble, Sarah Walker, and Ian Williams

The five members of Witness, like the other ministry groups, spend two months of the summer traveling around the Northwest. Unlike the other teams, they sometimes remain in one place for a little while becoming part of the staff at various camps as counselors, activities coordinators, worship leaders, and whatever other jobs need filled. The members of this team had opportunities to get to know the kids they were ministering to as they worked in the various camps. Additionally, they formed close bonds with one another as they worked and played together for the summer. Being a part of this team was an experience that they will treasure forever.

When living out of a van and traveling with the same people for two months, Witness shows that it is important to keep a sense of humor.

(( ( AMBASSADORS ) )

The 2003-2004 Ambassadors take a break from their ambassador duties and their busy schedules pose for a group picture.

Ambassadors are selected through an application process by the Admissions Office to help out visitors when they visit campus. Ambassadors give tours to prospective students and their parents, help at Explore NNU events, host students in their rooms, and represent NNU to the community. These students are enthusiastic, hard-working, and great representatives of NNU.

In appreciation for all of their hard work, the ambassadors are treated to a night out to dinner and away from campus.

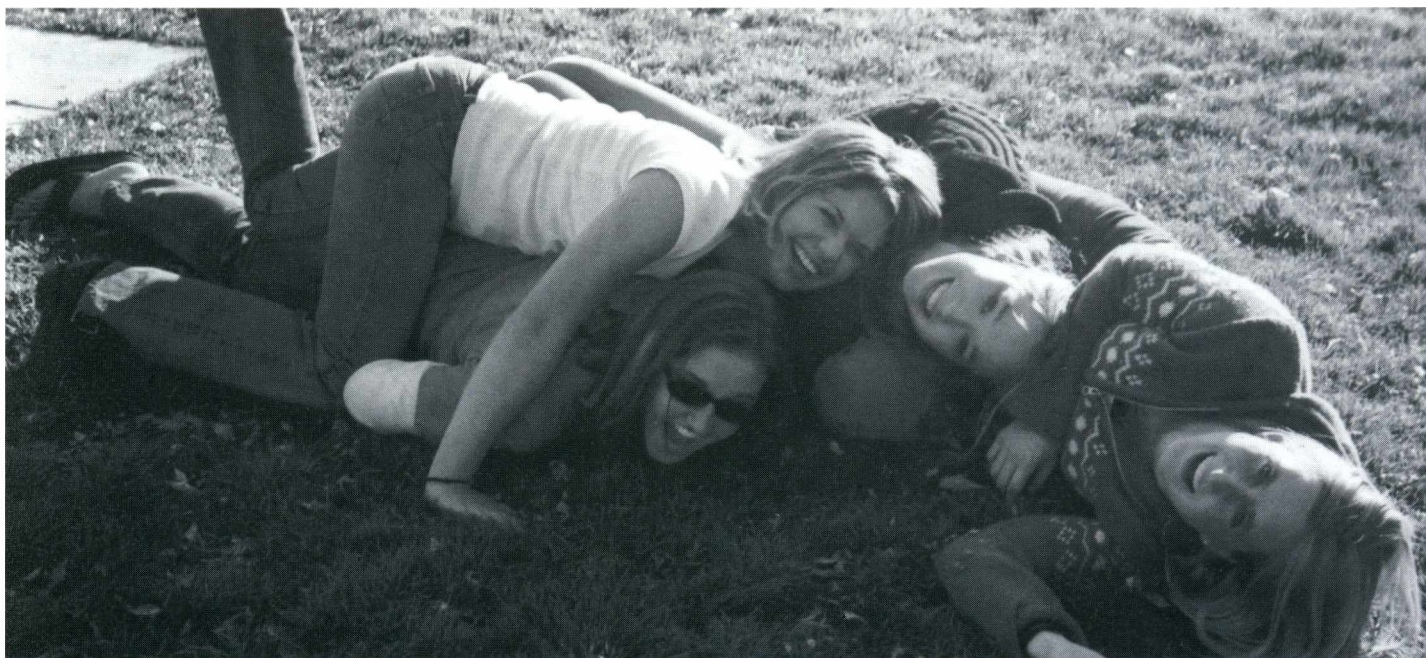

The Ford RAs demonstrate a new and slightly messy way to eat peanut butter and jelly.

The Ford RAs are crucial to the first year experience of all freshman girls living in Ford. They serve as friends, counselors, and problem-solvers extraordinaire as they help freshmen adjust to life away from home. These girls spent many hours on desk, holding wing meeting, planning social events to help their girls get to know one another and some of the Culver guys, and occasionally passing out the dreaded fine slips. The job often meant late hours and little sleep, but the RAs willingly gave of themselves for their wings. Overall, this team provided an irreplaceable support system for all the girls in Ford.

The Ford RAs: Kara Johnson, Jen Sterk, Wendi Terrell, Noelle Allgeier, Anneke Miyauchi, Ashley Strickler, RD Robyn Lande, Kristi Wherry, and Rebecca Clark.

Anneke Miyauchi, Kara Johnson, Wendi Terrell, and Ashley Strickler show how close the RAs became over the course of the year.

(( CULVER RA'S ))

An entire dorm full of freshmen guys may intimidate some, but the Culver RAs rose to the challenge of being leaders for their wings. Assisted by their Peer Counselors and Bible Study Leaders, these guys helped the freshmen settle in to their homes for the year and provided good examples for their guys. Being an RA always has its challenges, but the rewards make it a worthwhile job for those who undertake it.

(( DOOLEY RA'S ))

RAs for the sophomore dorms may not have to face the challenges often presented by freshmen, but they have the challenge of being authority figures for their own classmates. The Dooley RAs formed a strong team and were always available to help or lend a listening ear. Their caring spirits made Dooley residents feel more at home. Whether sitting on desk, holding wing meetings, or organizing wings-dings and twixes the RAs were always smiling and full of energy.

The Dooley RAs pose with Resident Director Kathy Burns as one big happy family at the LEAD Retreat before the beginning of school. Over the course of the year, the RA's spent much time together and formed friendships with each other as well as the girls on their wings.

Life was never dull in Sutherland where caffeine and video games abounded in great quantities and sleep was a rare occurrence. In this environment, the RAs did their best to keep the peace and improve dorm life for all. As is evidenced from the pictures shown here, this team of guys never lacked enthusiasm or willingness to do something a little bit crazy.

The Sutherland RAs never took themselves too seriously whether dressing up for Halloween or posing as elves for Christmas.

The RAs for Corlett and Olsen have a different type of responsibility from the RAs of the other dorms. Apartment living affords residents more freedom, but they also have some unique problems that the RAs are around to help solve. This team helps students transition from traditional dorm life. Of course, their most important duty is distributing toilet paper!

(( PEER HEALTH EDUCATORS ))

The PHE's stand in front of the drinking wall during an event they sponsored to raise awareness about alcohol and its effects.

A brand new addition to student leadership this year were the Peer Health Educators. This team of girls (though guys were welcome to apply), devoted their time to helping their fellow students become more educated about health issues that concern college students. They educated their peers about alcohol and eating disorders, among other things, and even held "Spring Fling" to encourage students to have a fun and safe spring break.

The Peer Counselors have a unique bond with the students on their wings. The PC's function as confidants and friends to the freshmen to whom they are assigned. They have the opportunity to hang-out with their students, attend wing events, and generally just become involved in their lives. This year's PCs were: Mark Baas, Gracie Bailon, Callie Brown, Lindsey Brown, Annie Corn, Staci Cronrath, Kim Dyckman, Keith Effler, Sam Fleischmann, Julie Gates, Justin McBride, Brandon Morse, Emily Strickler, Justin Wadsworth, Verne Ward, and Mandy Ziebart.

The cheers of the crowd resound across the field. The squeaks of tennis shoes, whether on the basketball court or the soccer field grass, fill the air. The athletes' pounding feet create tremors that reverberate throughout campus. Echoes of energy remain almost tangibly in the air long after the last cheer has faded. In fall, winter, or spring; inside or outside; at NNU or away; NNU athletes fill their environment with the sounds of spirited competition. As they travel, our athletic teams bring echoes of NNU with them to every school they visit. At home, they are a reminder of the spirit that has connected our campus for generations.

The gun fires, and they're off and running with arms and legs flashing in rhythm. Within seconds the sprint is over – it's all about the quick start.

Day in and day out the Track and Field team practices running, throwing, jumping, and vaulting in order to be the best possible athletes they can be. NNU usually makes a strong showing in meets, and the future is only looking up for these men and women. With the addition of the new indoor track facility, completed just this year, you can be sure that this program will never be the same again.

It was a tough but rewarding season for NNU Softball. The women won four games at home and five away, improving over the last two years and showing great potential. Although it's been a hard road ever since NNU stepped up into the Greater Northwest Athletic Conference, NNU Softball seems to be headed in the right direction.

As the smallest team in NNU Athletics, the Mens Golf team still performs below par. Which is excellent, of course, for golfers. Each athlete on the team walks miles and miles of fairway every season, hitting thousands of balls a year in order to perfect every aspect of their game. Mental control and physical prowess combined are what make golf such an intense sport. Just ask any of these players – you'll find them on the links.

Coaches Tyler Harding and Nate Yunge lead their team in prayer before a late afternoon game.

Bright sunshine and clean competition pervaded the fall intramurals this year. As hundreds of students could attest, school just didn't matter as much as beating the other team did! Powderpuff teams clashed in pursuit of the trophy and volleyballers sacrificed body and soul in hair-raising digs and spikes. If you missed it this year, don't worry – Intramurals are a staple of NNU, and next year you can bet they'll be even better.

Despite difficulties throughout the season, the team showed improvement and potential for even greater success in the future.

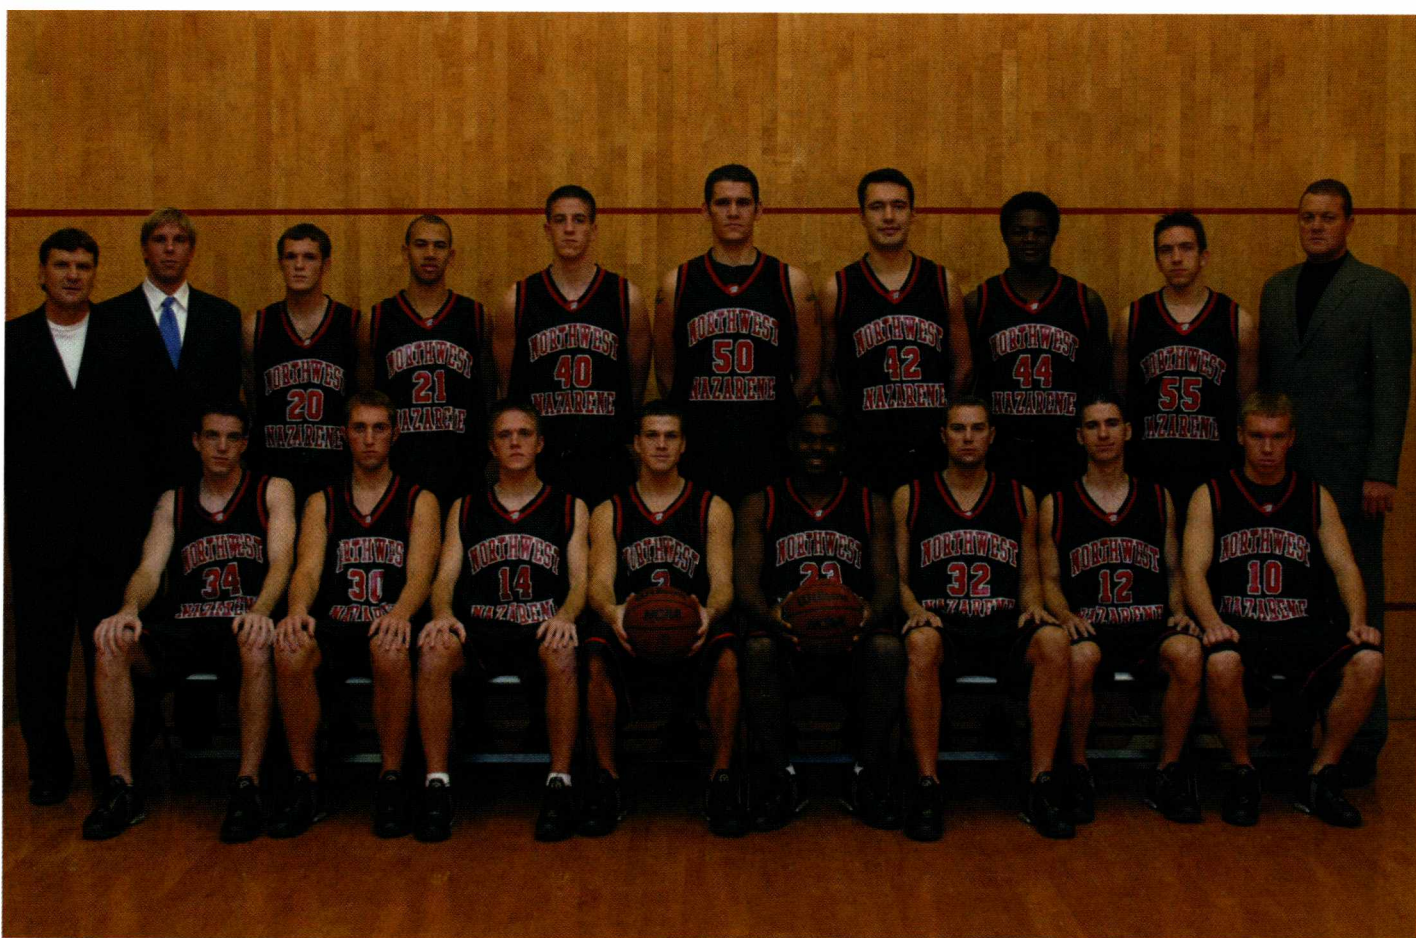

Randi Hufford makes a calculated tackle in a win against Eastern Oregon.

Aubrey Metzger settles the ball on her foot while shielding it from an Albertson's defender.

(MEN'S BASKETBALL)

Mesut Ademoglu makes a sweet move under the hoop for a lay-up.

BELOW: Derek Olich takes the defense off guard, leaving him space to dribble through.

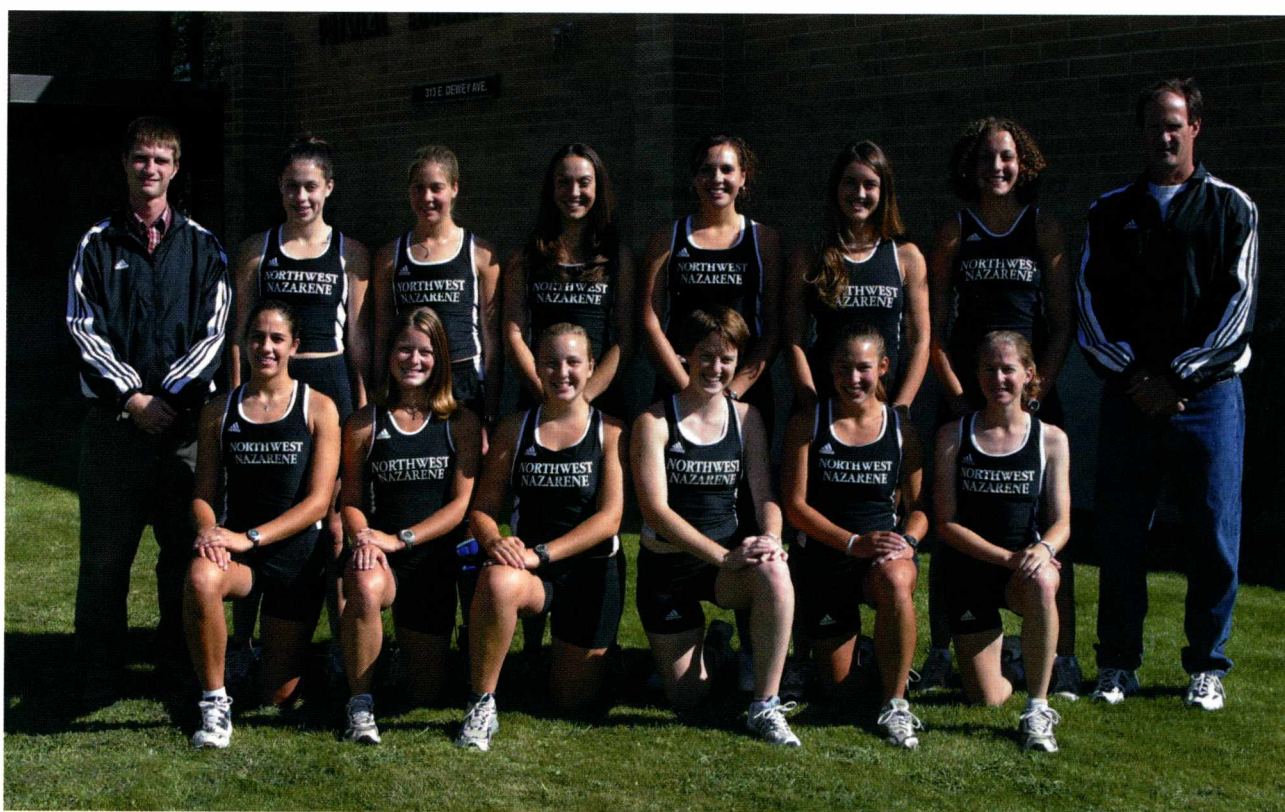

The Northwest Nazarene Men's Basketball team finished out the year with a 10-16 record, continuing to build over their previous seasons. During the year, three athletes were recognized as All-Academic All-stars in the Greater Northwest Athletic Conference. The athletes were Jerome Casper who is a three time academic all-star, senior Cam Wattling, and junior David Lehrschall. With hard work and a drive to win, the Crusaders will surely continue to grow and develop in the years to come at NNU.

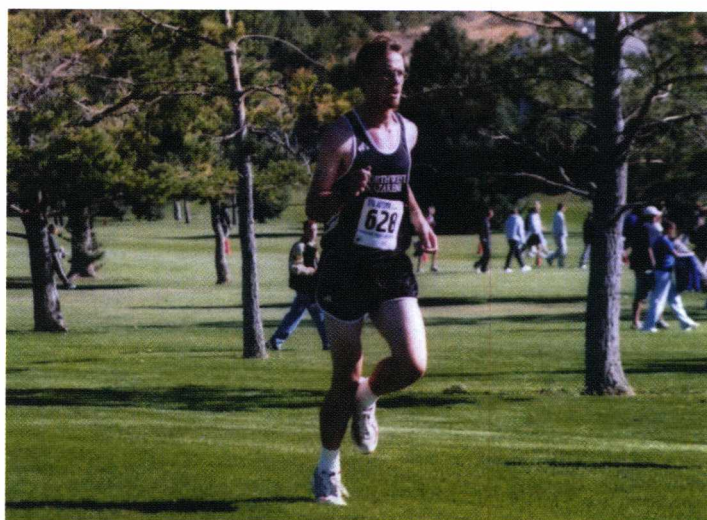

Making his presence felt, Cam Wattling takes on two opposing players with an aggressive pivot towards the basket.

((CROSS COUNTRY))

(( sports ))

Northwest Nazarene Cross Country goes to great lengths to win. Training many hours a week and running miles to boot, fans of the sport won't find a more dedicated team. With many new members swelling its ranks, NNU Cross Country has earned respect for itself this season – finishing strong at the Cross Country Western Regional Championships.

BACK ROW: Assistant Coach Ben Gall, Zach Dwello, Jake Hotchkiss, Kevin Lambert, Tim Keller, Jay Lundergan, Chad Hazelbaker, and Head Coach John Spatz

Julia Pridgen fades back to shoot, being harshly contested by the opposing defense.

Jenny Binford leads the fast break and lays up the basketball for an easy two points.

Women's basketball at NNU has amazed fans and supporters this year with an almost perfect at home record for conference play. The Crusaders had an 8-1 record at home in the Greater Northwest Athletic Conference and an overall record of 15-12. With their ever-increasing pool of talent, the Crusaders will be looking to improve even more in the coming seasons, although the three seniors graduating – Heidi Buehler, Jenny Binford and Julia Barker – will be sorely missed.

Heidi Buehler keeps her eyes on the hoop and scores despite the double pressure.

WINTER INTRAMURALS

Verne Ward dunks with authority on the sidelines.

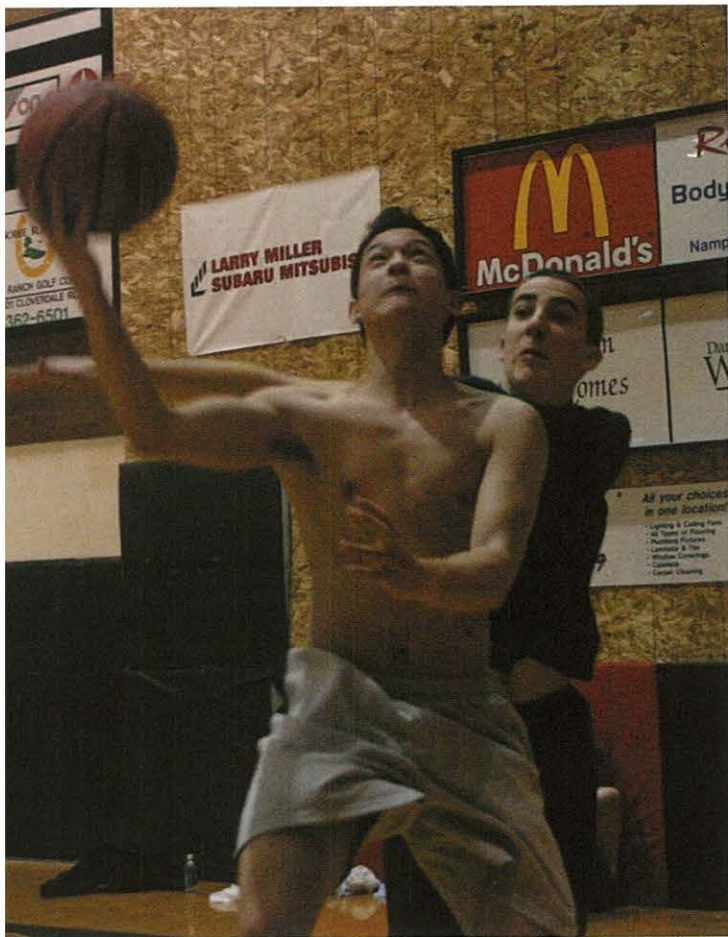

Brad Waller floats in midair while spotting up for the shot.

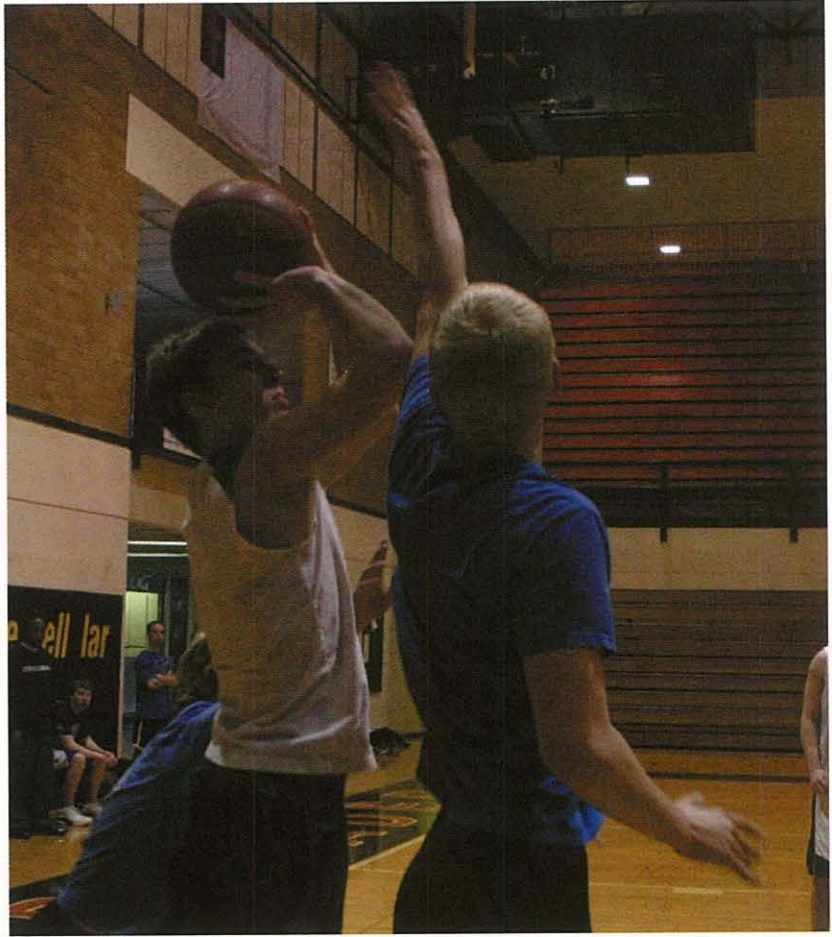

Brandon Hill rises above both teammates and opponents with impunity while most of them await the outcome of his shot.

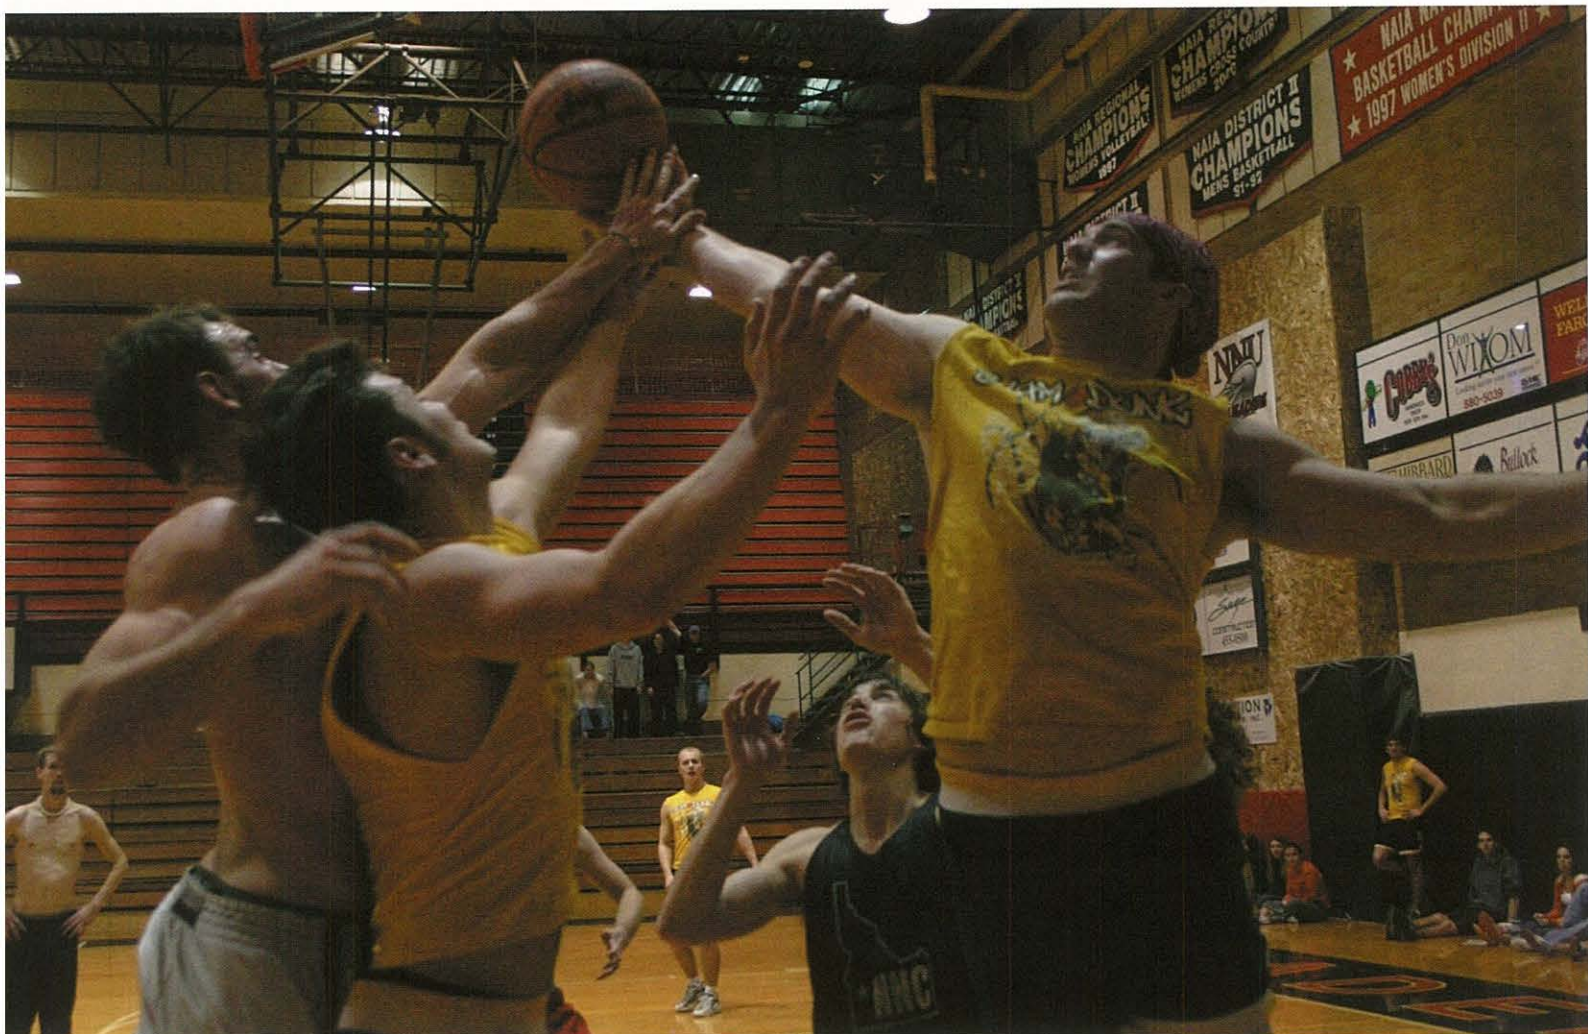

Extending his arm for the lay-up, Ric Shewell avoids his opponent.

Matt Elmore goes up for a shot under tough defense.

Ben Wingerter hurls the baseball towards first base right after making a catch.

With a huge swing, Dan Richardson smashes the ball into the outfield.

An umpire scrutinizes the pitch that catcher Joseph Cabansag receives.

Justin Ubbenga scoops up a low grounder while staying near second base.

Ben Wingerter leads off fearlessly.

Joseph Cabansag waits ready in his batter's stance.

Ben jumps back to his base, barely avoiding getting out.

The Northwest Nazarene Baseball team played well this season, keeping fans on their toes with fast paced action on the pitchers mound, in the batter's box, and all over the outfield. As members of the Dugout Club can attest, baseball at NNU is worth supporting – and they proved it this year by contributing thousands of dollars to the NNU team. Hopefully NNU baseball will be around to grow and develop for many years to come.

Steven Schutte winds up for his next pitch.

Chad Pfeifer stares intently at the ongoing play, shifting himself to run either direction at a moment's notice.

((VOLLEYBALL))

BELOW: Aubrey Harrington makes an amazing dive to save a point against Humbolt.

The NNU Women's Volleyball team ended their 2003 season with a satisfying 9-9 record in the GNAC (the Greater Northwest Athletic Conference.) During the season, two juniors and two seniors earned Academic All-conference Honors, showing that scholastics and sportsmanship are both integral to NNU Women's Volleyball. The team played 28 matches this season with dedication and skill in every game.

Players gather around Assistant Coach Stephen Garwick before facing off against Humbolt State. The team secured victory in just three games.

SPRING (INTRAMURALS)

BELOW: Laughing as usual, Jolleen Quimba stands ready for the batter to send one her way.

RIGHT: David Alban holds off Nate Knodel in a furious tangle of arms and legs.

Heidi Hanson pitches a wicked underhand while Ben Nelson waits on first base for the hit. Trisha Lind watches from the outfield.

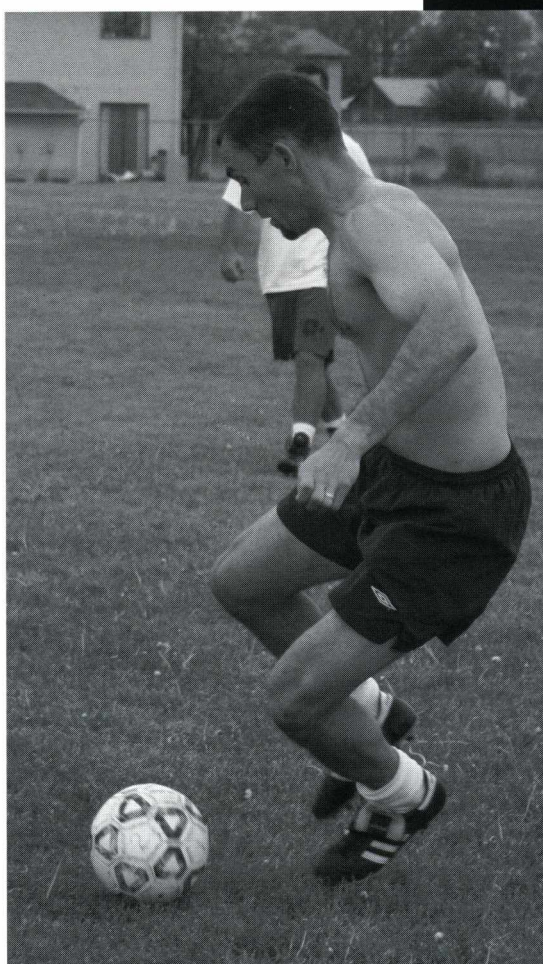

Nate Knodel laughs in the face of danger while Ben Stecker comes barreling down on him with the soccer ball.

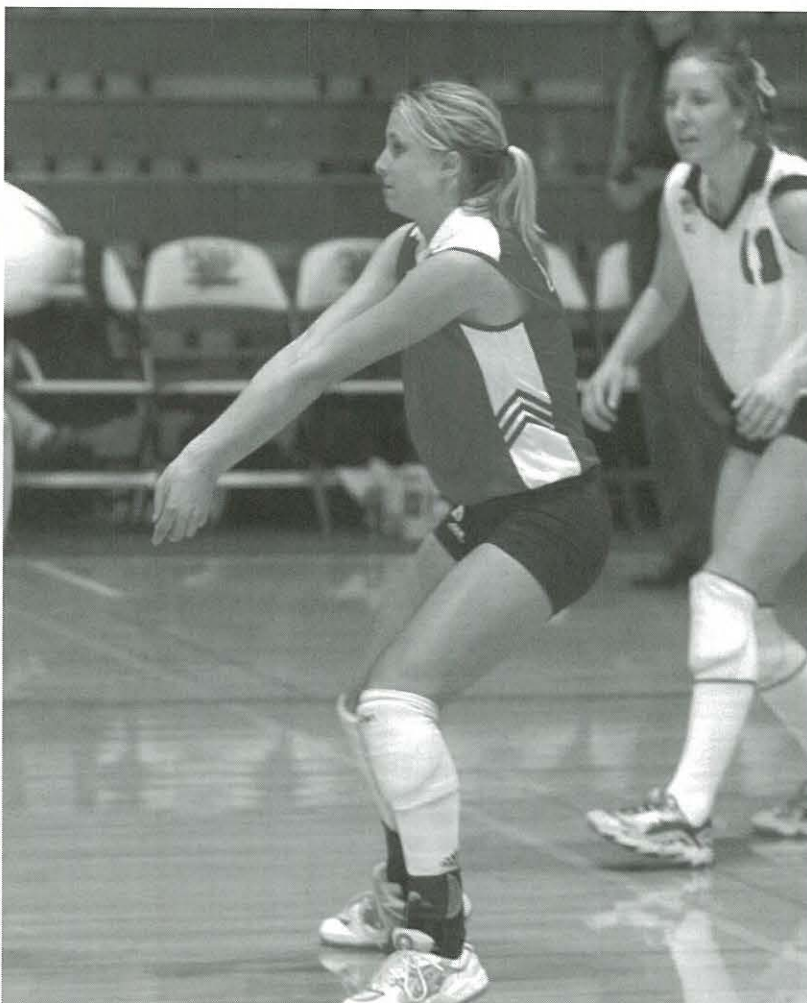

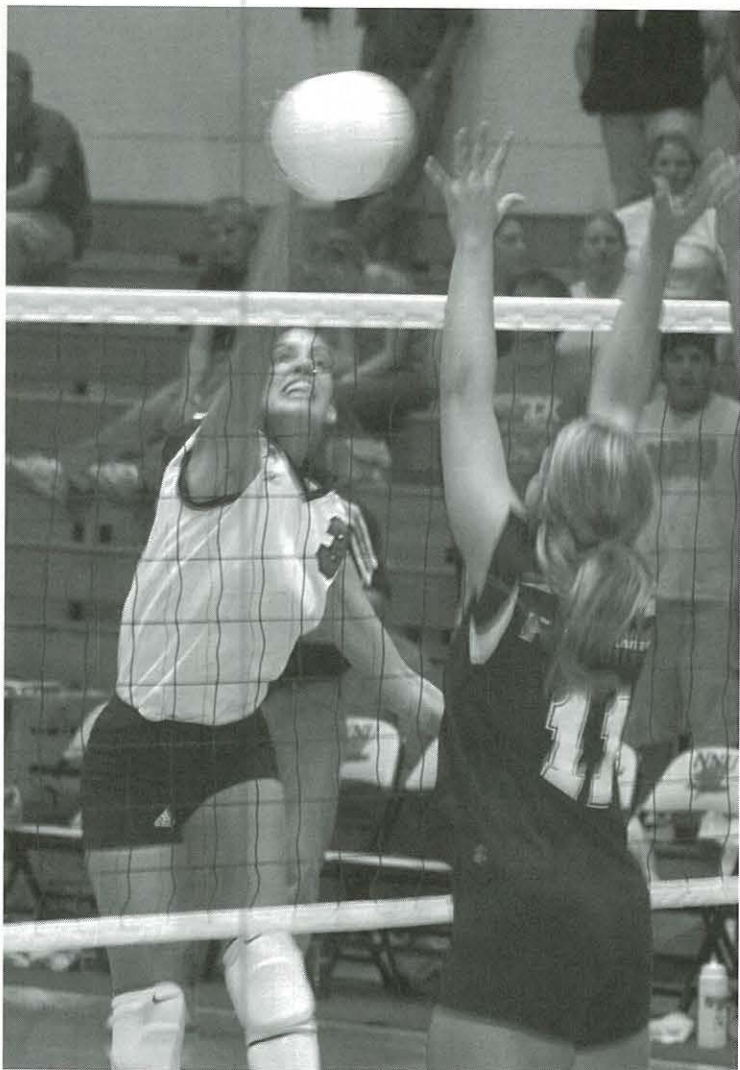

Batter up! Nate Yunge leans back and prepares to swing.

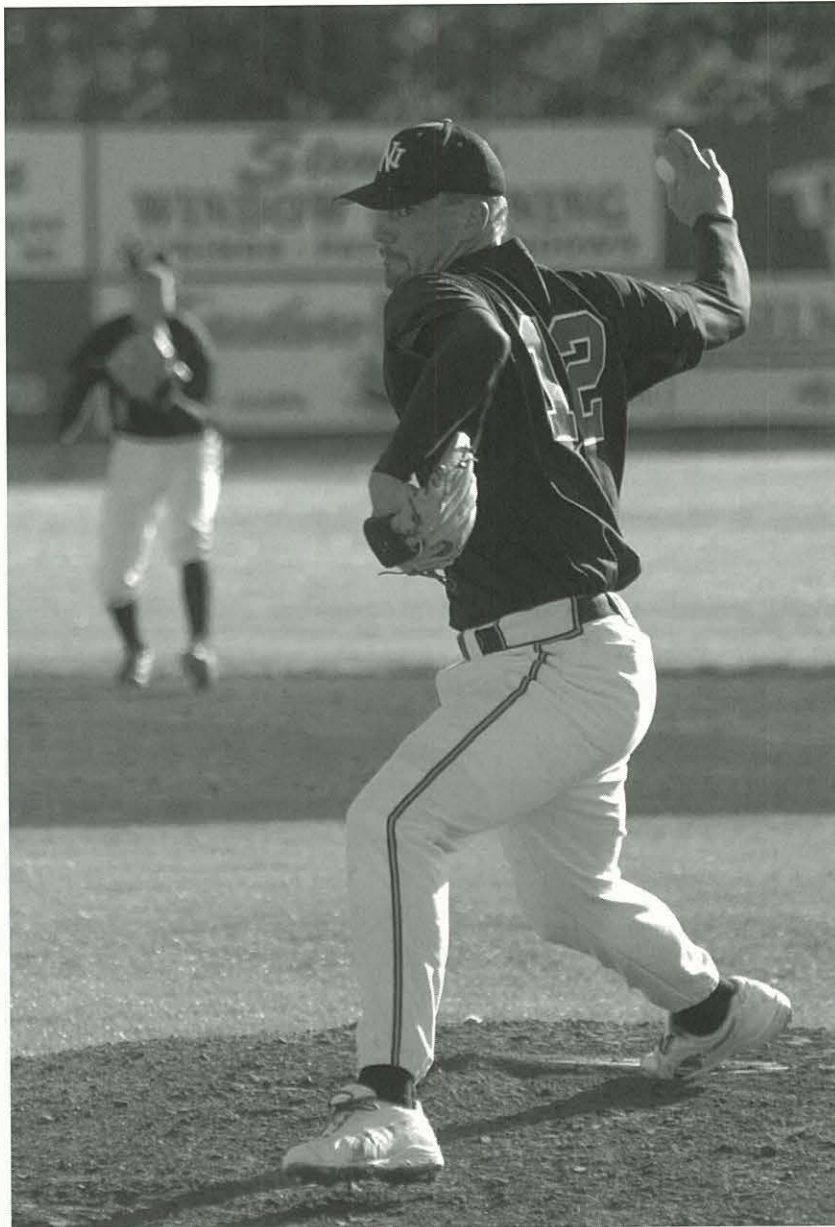

Coach Jamie Lindvall plays soccer for fun.

Springtime at NNU was quite beautiful to see as the weather slowly changed away from the cold winter months. Newly cut grass and the sound of singing birds framed the spring intramural sports this year, giving students a welcome break from the stress of classes. Whether playing soccer, tennis, or softball, much fun was had relearning the joys of sunshine and the great outdoors in the company of friends and faculty.

NNU's wide variety of clubs offers something for every student. There are groups that reach out to the community like PALS or Angels or ones that sharpen skills like SIFE or NNU's Photography Society. One can join a club related to their, or another, major like the Psychology or Physics Club or get outside with the Outdoor Rec. Club. Whatever one's interests may be, each person can find his/her place in the ripples of campus life and bring echoes of the NNU campus to the community.

PALS stands for "People Always Loving Someone." This ministry club reaches out to young adults with developmental disabilities and plans activities for them. The members of the club meet every other Saturday to put on some kind of event in which these young adults can participate. They do everything from picnics to bowling to taking people to events like the Living Christmas Tree at College Church and No Greater Love at Nampa First Church. This club has been a standard at NNU for nearly seven years now, and their impact on the lives of those they minister to is tremendous.

Julie Fisher carefully prepares all the food for a picnic lunch in the park as a PALS member looks on. Events like this helped PALS form relationships with these young adults.

(( ANGELS ))

Angels is a ministry club to two shelter homes in Nampa that house elderly people who have mental disabilities or who can no longer live on their own. The group goes to the two homes every week to play Bingo and fellowship with the residents. On Mondays they visit a home for the retired and veterans. On Thursdays, their stop is at a home for men. Occasionally, they have the opportunity to take the residents out for events such as bowling, NNU sports events, and breakfast at McDonald's.

Angels members Becca Holmquist and Mary Osborne enjoy breakfast at McDonald's with two ladies from the retirement home at which the club ministers.

Young Life is a ministry group that reaches out to students in local high schools. They hold weekly meetings to get that often include a game, secular music, another game, and then a devotional time. They also sponsor other events during the year like a retreat and camps. The focus of this group is on friendship evangelism— bringing students to Christ by just hanging out with them and being a part of their lives.

Ryan Boschma, as a member of the men's basketball team from the '80s, helps these high schoolers have some fun.

Sleepovers can be a great time to find out what is going on in students lives and connect with them while having a great time just being their friends.

NNU students Ryan Boschma and Alyssa Sanders pose for a picture with some of the high school girls whom they have gotten to know through Young Life.

(( HOPE HOUSE ))

Hope House is a ministry club that works with children from Hope House, a home for abused and abandoned children. These children, ranging in age from eight to twelve, benefit greatly from the consistent weekly interaction with students from NNU. Each week, a group travels to Hope House to play games, sing songs, teach a Bible lesson, and just spend time with the kids. A few times each semester, the group gets to take the children on an activity outing to do things like bowling, swimming, or having a picnic lunch.

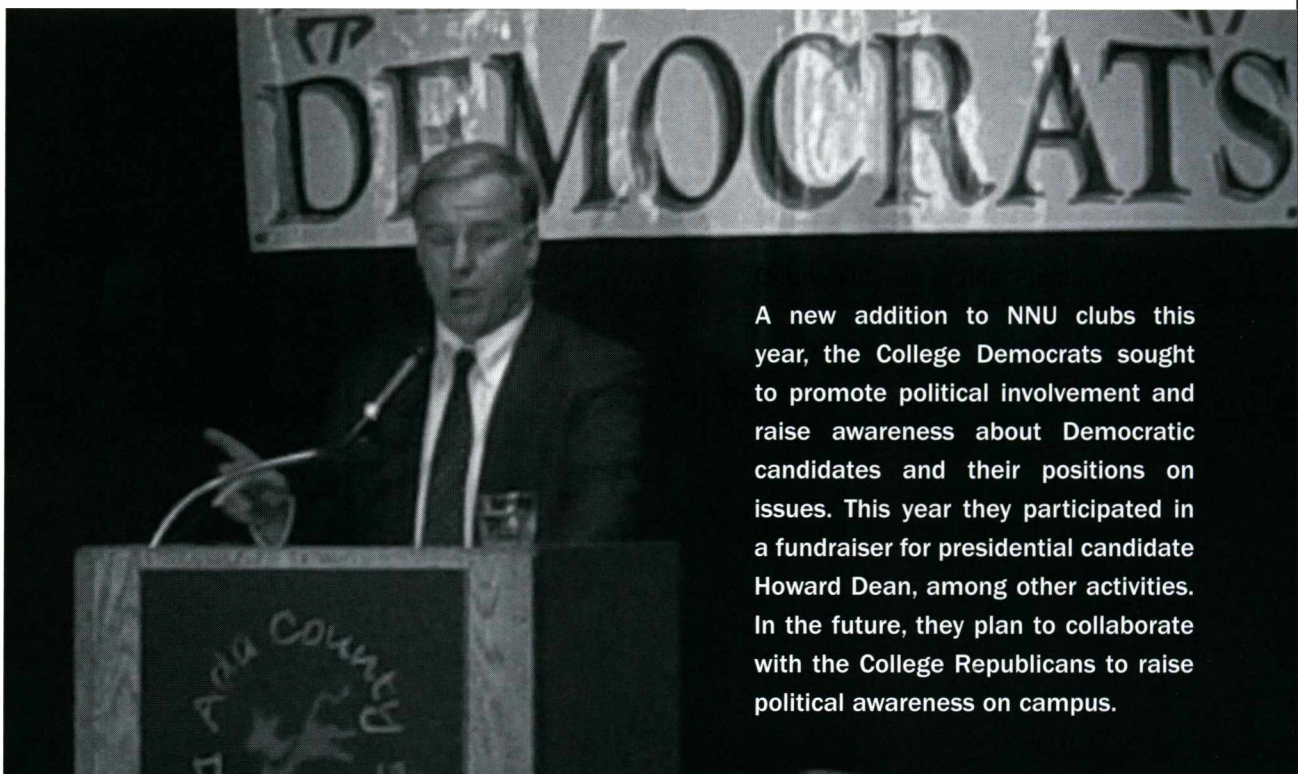

Jerad Shoemaker and Forest Fisk enjoy lunch in the great outdoors with some of the children from Hope House.

(( COLLEGE DEMOCRATS ))

A new addition to NNU clubs this year, the College Democrats sought to promote political involvement and raise awareness about Democratic candidates and their positions on issues. This year they participated in a fundraiser for presidential candidate Howard Dean, among other activities. In the future, they plan to collaborate with the College Republicans to raise political awareness on campus.

After a two year absence from campus, Fellowship of Christian Athletes was back this fall. They met each Monday in the gym for a time of testimonies, Bible study, worship, and prayer. Also, they worked with Boise State students on off-campus ministries projects. FCA serves to "present to athletes and coaches, and all whom they influence, the challenge and adventure of knowing Jesus Christ."

Members of Students in Free Enterprise work together to apply their classroom experiences to develop educational outreach programs that will educate those in their community about the principles of market economics, entrepreneurship, personal finance success, and business ethics. By teaching the concepts of free enterprise, SIFE members strive to improve the quality of life and standards of living for their communities. This year's successful team had over thirty members from a variety of majors and brought home a win at their Regional Competition.

The Business Club is another departmental club that strives to build relationships and camaraderie among the students in their majors. It provides an opportunity for business majors to get to know one another in a less formal setting than a classroom. The Business Club is in charge of the ever helpful scam book every year. This book provides handy access to pictures and phone numbers of all students who choose to be in it.

Skaters in Christ is a ministry club that reaches out to the youth of the community by giving them a safe and positive place to hang out and skate— and also an opportunity to hear the Gospel. Their skate park is open four days a week and on Saturdays a message is given. They also sponsor an end of the year BBQ.

Christmas is a great time for a party, and the Psychology Club shows that they love to have fun as well as learning.

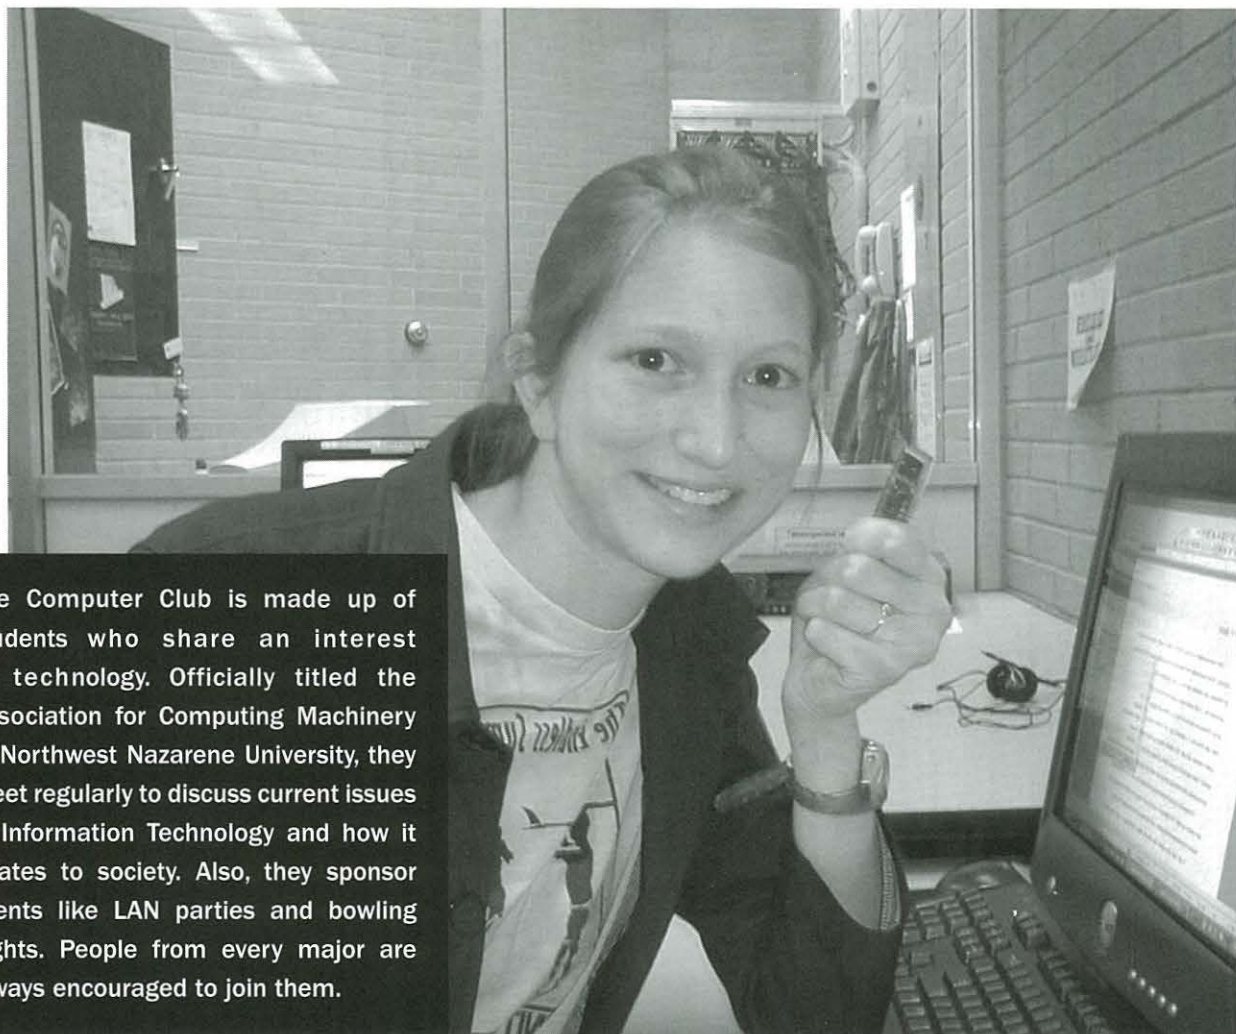

The 2003-2004 Psychology Club poses together for a picture. The club gave psychology majors an opportunity to build friendships.

The Psychology Club consists of psychology majors, minors and any other interested students who desire to gain psychology-related experience, leadership skills, and a better understanding of the field. Some of their activities for the year included throwing parties at Dr. Willis' house, fund-raising, community service, and inducting new members into the Psi Chi National Honor Society. In the spring, members attended the annual Western Psychological Association Conference where they learned about current events and grad school opportunities.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

((COMPUTER CLUB))

The Computer Club is made up of students who share an interest in technology. Officially titled the Association for Computing Machinery of Northwest Nazarene University, they meet regularly to discuss current issues in Information Technology and how it relates to society. Also, they sponsor events like LAN parties and bowling nights. People from every major are always encouraged to join them.

Members of the Physics Club take time out from building a clock for a picture.

The Physics Club is designed mostly for physics and engineering physics majors, but anyone who is enrolled in a physics class is invited to join. Meetings are held a few times a semester. The club sponsors several events throughout the year like the physics picnic, science fiction movie nights, astronomy nights, and a bridge building contest. This year's officers were President Wesley Tennyson, Vice President Ben Wornell, and Treasurer Aaron Enes.

( ( PHOTOGRAPHY SOCIETY OF NNU ) )

The Photography Club was another new addition to the NNU campus this year. Founders Keith Effler and Wilson Wanene saw that there were a lot of students interested in photography and decided to start a group where they could all share their common interest. This year, they sponsored the first NNU photo contest. Members of this club simply enjoy taking pictures and want to share their skills and knowledge with one another and the campus as a whole.

(( OUTDOOR RECREATION CLUB ))

Mountain biking kings lift their bicycles in triumph.

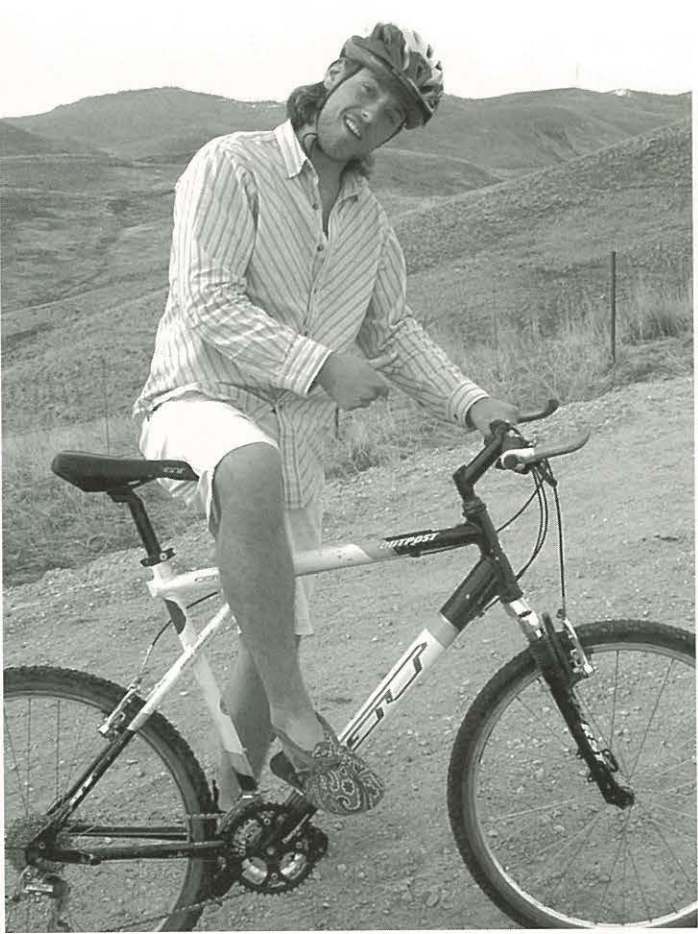

The Outdoor Recreation Club gives students a chance to get away from campus and try some of the many different outdoor activities offered close to campus. Rock climbing, mountain biking, hiking, camping, and snow shoeing were all part of trips organized by this group. Also, thanks to this group there is now outdoor equipment like tents and sleeping bags available for any student to rent who wants to try his/her hand at conquering the great outdoors.

The Forensics Team participates in speech and debate activities across the country during the year. This year, they had fourteen active members and attended six tournaments. The team won over fifty awards in competition against schools from various states, including Washington, Oregon, California, Montana, Texas, Kentucky, Ohio. They participated in events such as Parliamentary Debate, Poetry reading, Extemporaneous speaking, Prose reading, Impromptu speaking, After-Dinner speaking, and Duo Interpretation.

(( READER'S THEATRE ))

Reader's Theatre is a group which performs literature. It is a way to present all different genres of literature: poetry, prose, and drama. Reader's Theatre allows the performers to interpret the literature and present their interpretations as well as the author's words and intent. Having an opportunity to perform more than one character, focus on the words and voice with limited costumes and props, and incorporate the audience's imagination are unique aspects of Reader's Theatre. At least one Reader's Theatre is presented each semester.

The Chemistry Club deals with a bit of fire during an experiment. This is a prime example of why lab coats and protective goggles are required in the lab.

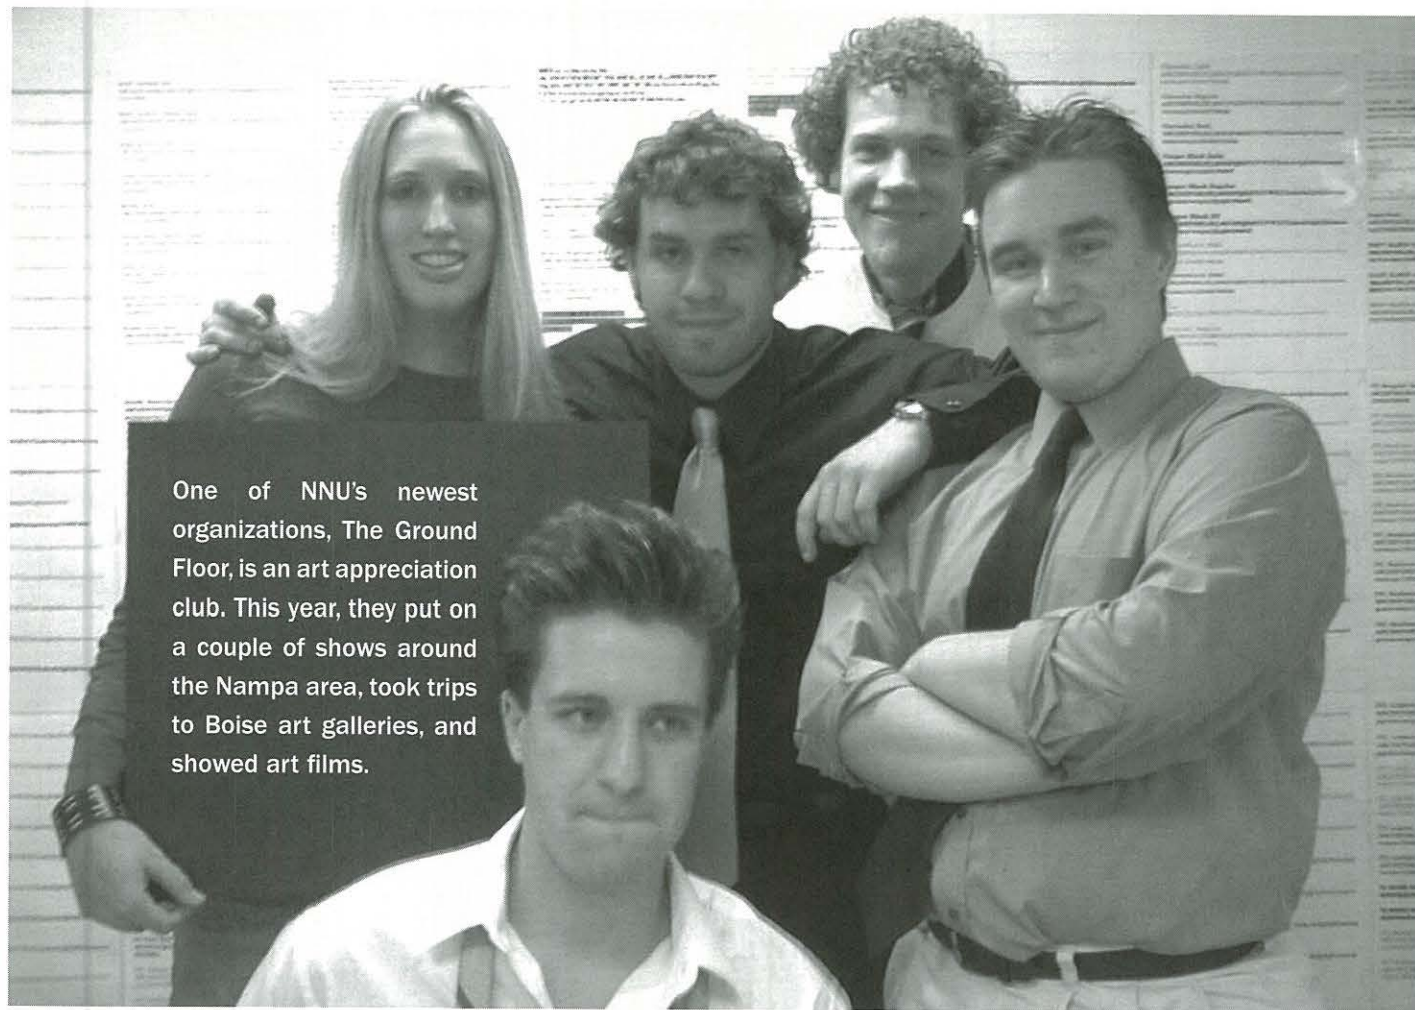

Annah Fitch carefully examines the contents of her beaker during an experiment.

The Chemistry Club is an essential part of the lives of not just chemistry majors, but of many science majors. The members may spend some time conducting experiments and setting things on fire, but overall the club is intended to provide a way for science majors to interact socially with one another. They plan retreats and parties to provide settings outside of school to hang-out and relax with one another. This club meets about every two weeks and is involved in planning events like the Science Olympiad, a competition for junior high and high school students. The club had a lot of fun together this year as they created memories that will last a lifetime.

( ( CHEMISTRY CLUB ) )

One of NNU's newest organizations, The Ground Floor, is an art appreciation club. This year, they put on a couple of shows around the Nampa area, took trips to Boise art galleries, and showed art films.

Camelot is a newly formed club for anyone who loves literature and wants a group of people with whom to discuss it. President Sharece Bunn says it "aspires to inspire." They read poems, play Scrabble, talk, and hang-out. The club was fashioned after the Dead Poet's Society and is seen by the founders as a "support group for English nerds." This year Camelot sponsored the Poetry Slam.

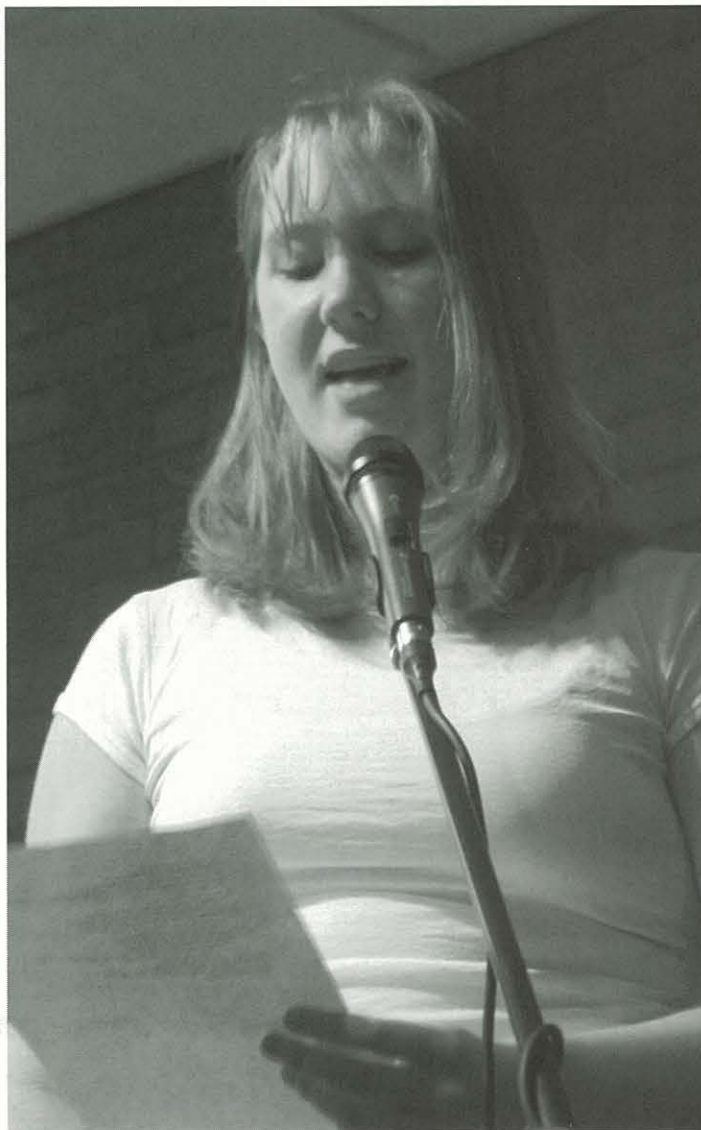

Camelot members Bethany Kuykendall, Sharece Bunn, Benjamin Baird, Rebekah Bergstrom, and Stephanie Williamson.

The Crusader staff spent a lot of time together from weekly meetings to never-ending layout nights. Through out the year, the office grew increasingly more like a family living room, than a work environment. Sports editor, Shelli Bunn-Peterson even kept her baby's playpen in the office - along with various other toys. On most Thursday nights you could find dedicated graphic designers Andy Kerr, Amy Carner, Mike Jeter and Angie Finton perfecting their pages, while Managing Editor Ali Brown and Assistant Editor Anna Salisbury waited for their turn on the computers. Erik Eilers and Tiana Cutright would be faithfully counting their writer's lines, while Sharece Bunn would attempt to entertain the whole tired office. In the corner, quietly correcting articles Copy Editor, Laura Hansen, would occasionally look up to laugh at a story or sometimes Sharece. And the ever-faithful computer expert, Mackay Dufour, waited in the office until the last page had been sent to the printer, though not on the payroll - he donated his time to the grateful editors.

When putting together a yearbook, a staff must keep in mind its many varied audiences. It must be entertaining to current students while also being informative enough for the forgetful memories of those same students 20 years from now. It mustn't shock the board of regents or scare off prospective students. Above all, we must keep in mind those future students who will pick up this yearbook in the Ford lobby and cringe as they find their dads in out-of-date shaggy hairdos. We have attempted to design this book to be useful and enjoyable for all these audiences. This year, I had a lot of talent to utilize in my staff. Their skill made it possible for us to seamlessly transition to making the yearbook entirely by digital means. Of course, the disadvantage of going digital was that it opened up the door for a whole new slew of computer problems. All these were summarily and patiently handled by my staff. Even if the computer did eat their carefully drawn palm trees three times! Through the hurry and bustle of deadline times, through the last minute panics and close calls, through the sticky computer problems which always surfaced when deadline was imminent, we managed to have fun while putting together a book whose contents will hopefully send an echo of NNU 2003-2004 to current and future generations.
